JURY MAY GET BOMB CASE BY NIGHT, REPORT

State Rests Abruptly, Without Trying to Show Motive.

ACCUSED SMILINGLY CONFIDENT AT RECESS

Defense Calls an Expert to Offset Fur Gun Testimony.

CHARACTER WITNESS GROUP TAKES STAND

Woman Faints From Heat During Quiz in Stuffy Courtroom.

Twelve middle-aged farmers, sitting in judgment on Lawrence Leroy Brady, alleged bomb murderer, may return a verdict tonight. Brady's defense opened yesterday afternoon in the overcrowded Rockville courtroom after the State had rested on circumstantial evidence which it hopes will definitely link the defandant with the murder of his sister-in-law and two small children at Seat Pleasant, Md., last New Years.

Forestalling possible rebuttal efforts to show that Leroy used the trigger of his brother's gun in manufacturing the "Christmas gift" that wrecked the Hall home, defense attorneys last night introduced a trigger claimed to have been found among the defendant's possessions yesterday. This trigger, they assert, was the one taken from Emmett Brady's fur gun.

Eliminating many witnesses on their lengthy list, the defense ran in a mass of counter-evidence last night, and expected to end direct evidence early this morning. M. Hampton Magruder, heading the defense, predicted that the case would go to the jury tonight.

Defense Calls Expert.

Dr. Vladimir V. de Sveshnikoff, former physicist and chemist of the Bureau of Standards, was called by the defense last night to controvert the State's expert testimony concerning construction of the infernal machine that killed 18-year-old Naomi Hall Brady, her sister and baby brother. He said that powder of the type found in the home of the defendant's brother could not have caused the havoc wrought by the bomb that exploded in the Hall home. He also claimed that there was no way of telling whether pieces of the detonating cap found in the bomb's wreckage were from an ordinary blasting cap, or a musket cap similar to those said to have been found in Emmett Brady's home.

The prosecution's expert testimony centered on the claim that a copper musket cap, and a trigger similar to that allegedly removed from the fur gun were used in the bomb.

Before court adjourned last night the defense called more than a dozen character witnesses, most of them employes of the Washington garage, where Leroy was employed. Several of them identified the defense's trigger exhibit as that taken from the defendant's locker yesterday morning.

State Rests Its Case.

The State rested shortly after noon, without attempting to establish a motive, and with a number of its witnesses to be examined.

Dr. Robert H. Wood, head of the department of experimental physics at Johns Hopkins University, was the principal witness for the prosecution. Basing his testimony on a microscopic examination of the bomb fragments, Dr. Wood said that, in his opinion, the infernal machine was fired by a trigger attachment similar to that allegedly removed from a fur gun by the defendant.

He also said that pieces of copper found on the trigger used in the bomb were similar to musket caps.

Powder Also Discussed.

Powder of the type taken from Emmett's tool shed, he said, could have been used in the bomb to convey fire to the dynamite which is supposed to have been used in the infernal machine. Prof. Wood said that a small spring removed from the stockroom of the garage where the defendant works was similar to a spring used in the bomb. Humor was injected into the proceedings when the spring was dropped and momentarily lost several times during its handling.

Cross-questioned for more than an hour by Mr. Magruder, Dr. Wood stuck to his theory that the bomb had been fired by a plunger attached to a musket cap. An ordinary blasting cap, he said, would not work in a bomb without a fuse.

The doctor's testimony was repeatedly interrupted by defense objections, most of which the court overruled.

Other Experts Heard.

Others who qualified as experts and who identified the fragments of metal tubing used in the bomb as similar to metal tubing found at Leroy's garage were James S. Adleson and Ray-

Police Guard Against Tong War Outbreaks

POLICEMAN R. L. JENKINS, of the Sixth Precinct, is shown guarding the headquarters of the Hip Sing Tong at 325 Pennsylvania avenue after word was received of what is feared to be a new tong war, which has taken two lives in the East.

Chinatown Patroled as Two Die in Newark and New York.

Tong war!

These words seeped into Washington's peaceful Chinatown last night, and an air of dealy calm immediately settled over the section near the Capitol. The only outward appearance of uneasiness, however, was the constant patroling of the district by numerous uniformed policemen.

Fear that war has been declared by rival tongs is based on the fact that Chinese gunners and hatchet men yesterday left two deaths in their wake

DAWES HITS SOCIAL SEEKERS IN SPEECH

Gold Star Mothers Lauded in Address to Trinity College Assembly.

FRIENDLY RELATIONS AIM

Cambridge, England, June 5 (A.P.).—Ambassador Dawes tonight addressed a dinner given by the masters and fellows of Trinity College during which he paid tribute to the American Gold Star Mothers and made caustic reference to American social seekers in Great Britain.

The ambassador was responding in behalf of seventeen noted persons who had been given honorary degrees by Cambridge earlier in the day. The ambassador himself received the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

He referred only indirectly to those Americans who seek social preference, bringing this up in connection with the recent visit of the Gold Star Mothers whom he referred to as "the best representatives of my people."

"We have recently had in London," he said, "a body of American travelers representing a cross section of the American people, representing the heart and soul of the American people, representing the bone and sinew of the American people and the proud attitude of the American people—a body of travelers not self-invited, with their minds occupied by thoughts of society reporters or fashionable dressmakers.

"They brought no social introductions. The credentials which each carried were but the photograph of a son and a few withered flowers from a garden at home to lay on a grave in France."

The ambassador's address was mainly on Anglo-American relations.

"The heads of many of them were gray and the years had left them feeble, but the heartbeats of two great peoples were keeping time with their footsteps."

"As Ambassador of the United

ADKINS GETS POST IN DISTRICT COURT

G. O. P., Bar and Civic Leaders Indorse Appointment for Supreme Bench.

LAWYER HERE 30 YEARS

(Picture on Page Two.)

Jesse C. Adkins has been selected to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, it was announced at the White House yesterday.

His nomination will be sent to the Senate as soon as Associate Justice Alfred A. Wheat has been sworn in as the chief justice of the court. Until this ceremony takes place the vacancy which Mr. Adkins is to fill will not actually exist.

Mr. Adkins has been a resident of Washington since he was 4 years old, and his selection by the President marks the first time in two years or more that a candidate backed by the local Republican organization has been chosen for a high office.

The name of the distinguished lawyer first was presented to the President by Samuel J. Prescott, chairman of the State Republican Committee of the District, and Edward F. Colladay, the National Republican Committeeman here.

Their endorsement was reinforced by the endorsements of many members of the bar and civic leaders. It also is understood that he had the backing of George W. Wickersham, chairman of the National Law Enforcement Commission, who was Attorney General at the time Mr. Adkins served in the Department of Justice.

Mr. Adkins, a member of the law firm of Adkins & Nesbitt, with offices in the Wilkins Building, has been practicing here for 30 years, and recently served as president of the District Bar Association.

Mr. Adkins was born in Knoxville, Tenn., 51 years ago. He came here at the age of 4 when his father, who

Nice, New Locks to Guard Senators From Prowlers

Moses Responsible for 320 Reasons Why Offices Should Be Safe.

To guard against the prowlers who have been ransacking the offices of senators, an entirely new system of locks has been installed in the Senate Office Building, it was learned last night.

The locks were ordered by Senator George H. Moses (Republican), of New Hampshire, just before he left on his tour of Europe. Yesterday he was notified that the last one was in place and that, in all, 320 had been installed.

Senator Moses, who has charge of the building by reason of the fact that he is chairman of the rules committee, directed that the new locks be ordered after a baffling series of robberies in the building.

The situation reached a climax the day that Senator Kenneth McKellar

Dirigible Takes Off for Friederichshafen After Brief Seville Stop.

HEADWAY SLOW OVER MEDITERRANEAN SEA

Group of Storm-Shaken Passengers Alight at Spanish Port.

TERRIFIC GALES FAIL TO DAMAGE AIRSHIP

High Winds Imperil Craft as 3,000 See Completion of Atlantic Hop.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Friday, June 6 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, homeward bound from Seville to Friedrichshafen, radioed the Zeppelin Works here at 2 a. m. today, mid European time (8 p. m., Thursday, E. S. T.), that she was flying east of Cartagena and continuing along the Mediterranean coast. Cartagena is about 290 miles by air line from Seville.

Friedchishafen, Germany, June 5 (A.P.).—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin, which left Seville this evening and turned toward her familiar berth at the Zeppelin plant here, was flying along the Mediterranean coast of France tonight on the southern route.

At midnight, mid European time (6 p. m. E. S. T.) the Zeppelin radioed that it had just flown over Cabo de Gata. That point is on the Mediterranean about 200 miles southeast of Seville.

Half Hour at Seville.

The position indicated that the Graf either was making slow time or else was cruising around to avoid bad weather, for the 200 miles was made in something like six hours.

With this course the Graf evidently will follow the Mediterranean to southern France and then head northward here to complete the flight begun May 18 to South America, North America and return.

The Zeppelin left Seville at 5:35 p. m. Spanish time, after spending only about a half an hour there.

An hour and 25 minutes later the airship was reported at a point 20 miles from Cadiz, heading east toward the Mediterranean.

Passengers Storm-Shaken.

Seville, Spain, June 5 (A.P.).—A bedraggled Graf Zeppelin and a wobbly, storm-shaken group of passengers made port here between storms today and in half an hour whirred away toward Friedrichshafen, seventh and last stop of their historic tricontinent voyage of nearly 18,000 miles.

After flying around for several hours over southern Spain, Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Graf's master, directed the huge craft to its depot, discharged passengers, literally snatched supplies from the ground and made off for home in just 31 minutes, demonstrating the express nature of the passenger craft.

It was a pale, haggard party of air adventurers that arrived, after being

HOUSE TO VOTE ON PAY BILL'S FUTURE COURSE

Chiefs Agree to Submit Resolution to Send Act to Conferees.

SIMMONS, IN ANGER, CITES BROKEN PLEDGE

Nebraskan Will Fight to the Last Ditch for Amendments.

EFFORT TO SCUTTLE HIS CLAUSES CHARGED

Tilson, After Seeing Leaders, Sees Compromise Hope Looming Brightly.

The House will be given a chance to vote on a resolution sending the Capper-Zihlman pay-raise bill to conference, it was announced late yesterday by Majority Leader Tilson.

Leader Tilson, who, with Speaker Longworth and Chairman Snell, of the rules committee, controls the House machinery, made this promise without consulting Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska.

The latter has been fighting to keep the bill out of conference, for he knows that if it goes to conference the amendments which he wrote into the bill might be thrown out.

Nebraskan Fighting Mad.

The bill, which raises the pay of local policemen and firemen, passed the House with the Simmons amendments, and then went back to the Senate. The latter body disagered to the amendments and sent the bill to conference. When a motion was made to have the House take part in the conference, Mr. Simmons objected.

The Nebraskan was fighting mad last night.

"When men break faith with me," he declared, "I will fight to the end."

The men he referred to were Representative Frederick N. Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland, chairman of the House District committee, and Representative Clarence McLeod (Republican), of Michigan, the acting chairman of that committee.

Promise Made, He Asserts.

Mr. Simmons, who is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee that handles the District appropriation bill, charged that the two men solemnly promised him they would support the bill with his amendments.

If they had not made such a promise, Mr. Simmons said, he would have continued his fight to prevent the bill from coming up for a vote.

Now that the Senate has sent the bill to conference, Mr. Simmons said, the two District committee members want to get together with the Senate conferees and "scuttle" his amendments.

Mr. Zihlman and Mr. McLeod indignantly denied that they had made any such promise to Mr. Simmons. How, they asked, could they pledge the Senate to approve the Simmons amendments?

Mr. Zihlman and Mr. McLeod held a long talk with Majority Leader Til-

Business in Washington

By HARRY W. HAHN,
President Wm. Hahn & Co.

HARRY W. HAHN.

From every commercial angle the same story is told and retold. Public service executives, hotel and insurance men, department store heads and other leaders all state that business in Washington has been practically the same as, or better than, last year.

Even the building trades, hardest hit of all, show decided improvement, having cut nearly in half the unemployment figures of last month, compared with a year ago. And I am glad to add the spring shoe sales of William Hahn & Co. are decidedly ahead of 1929.

All this proves that Washington, as the Irishman might say, is rapidly recovering from a disease she has never had; there has been no depression here. It is inconceivable that a serious one ever could occur, for, in place of fluctuating industrial activities, we have a stable governmental pay roll. Moreover, the great sums Uncle Sam is about to spend rebuilding and beautifying our city assures us in the near future of something approaching a real business boom.

What can business do to pave the way for this greater prosperity? That, also, has already been told in this column: "Keep moving," work harder, diligent readjustment to meet modern conditions, ruthless curtailment of overhead and waste. But this does not mean reduced salaries. On the contrary our firm always has believed that higher-than-average salaries, promoting efficiency and more personalized service make for increased economy in our operations.

And how can the public improve the situation to its own advantage? By more intelligent buying, laying greater stress on quality merchandise than on "bargain" prices; by less returns of merchandise and less congestion of shopping in the rush hours, which make goods more costly. Finally, by supporting those firms which are building substantially for the future with style, quality and service, at consistently fair prices, and by refusing to be misled too much by those who constantly strive for increased volume by overadvertising "sale" and distress merchandise, which costs much more in the long run.

HOOVER URGES BORAH TO SECURE ACTION ON PACT WITHOUT DELAY

Repeal of Dry Laws Urged by James Cox

Former Ohio Governor Favors Government Control of Rum.

Columbus, Ohio, June 5 (A.P.).—Former Gov. James M. Cox, of Dayton, Democratic presidential nominee in 1920, declared for repeal of the Federal prohibition amendment here tonight. Addressing a State-wide gathering of Democrats at a "victory dinner" in his capacity as chairman, Mr. Cox said:

"The people will never change the existing order by bringing back the saloon, nor will private interests ever again be permitted to become selfishly allied on any side of this issue.

"With this understanding, I unhesitatingly favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment. As between the old saloon order, with its brewery controlled politics, and what not, and the present set-up, I would prefer the latter. But we all prefer not being compelled to choose between these two extremes. Both are impossible."

Mr. Cox indicated his preference for governmental manufacture and control of alcoholic liquor in a declaration that there is need of another governmental provision "which shall in plain terms prohibit the manufac-

COMMITTEE FAVORS BROOKHART PAY BILL

House Group Kills Provision Making Wage Boosts Retroactive.

AMENDMENT ALSO VOTED

The Brookhart bill to correct inequalities in the Welch salary act of 1928 and give the low-paid Federal employes the raises Congress intended they should get was favorably reported yesterday by the House civil service committee.

Under terms of the bill, those who got only a $60 raise would get a $120 raise, and those who got only a $100 raise would get a $200 raise.

The measure already has passed the Senate, and will pass the House just as easily if the leaders allow it to come up.

Before reporting the bill out yesterday, the House committee killed the retroactive provision in the bill. Under this, the slighted employes not only would get the raises they are entitled to, but would be paid them beginning as of July 1, 1928.

The committee also added an amendment offered by Chairman Lehlbach. This would clear up whatever doubt exists as to authority of the Personnel Classification Board to review and revise allocation of employes to various grades.

Until a decision was handed down by Comptroller General McCarl on the Welch act, nobody doubted that the Classification Board had this authority, but the McCarl decision virtually stripped the board of it.

The amendment adopted yesterday provides that no employe's salary may be reduced when he is reallocated.

Chairman Lehlbach said after yesterday's meeting that he doubted whether there would be any action at this session on the bill to grant Federal and District employes a Saturday half holiday all through the year.

A controversy has developed over the bill among some department heads, Mr. Lehlbach said, and it was

CANNON QUIZ AWAITS RETURN OF CARAWAY

Bishop Walks Out on Lobby Hearing, in Spite of Walsh's Warnings.

CROWD GROWS EXCITED

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., kissed the Caraway lobby committee goodby yesterday, asserting that if the committee wanted him it could find him at his office.

This was most ironic because Senator Walsh, of Montana, and Senator Blaine, of Wisconsin, were insisting that the committee wanted him then.

"The committee has not excused you," Senator Walsh warned as the clergyman picked up his bundle of papers and made for the door, but Bishop Cannon said in effect that he did not care, he was on his way.

Outside lingered the associate of the bishop since their little secret of the 1928 campaign, C. Bascom Slemp.

The bewhiskered Representative Tinkham who had been most relentless on the bishop's trail walked up to Mr. Slemp.

"Well, Slemp, you certainly got the bishop into a hell of a hole," he chided.

This was only Mr. Tinkham's viewpoint. Mr. Slemp smiled knowingly and with the utmost confidence. Because he knows the Senate, and knows that the great story about the bishop, which every senator now knows and which all the lobbyists about the Capitol know and which all the newspapermen know, will never come out unless Senator Blaine should air it on the floor. The story is that of the bishop's bucket shop operations. In itself it is a personal matter and the committee makes no pretense of having anything to do with it except as it would unfold in connection with campaign expenditures.

That the committee will get no further with Bishop Cannon is generally believed, despite the fact that it admittedly has a clearer case of contempt against him now than it

Senator Assures Chief Executive of Prompt Consideration.

IDAHOAN INDIFFERENT ON PROCEDURE PLAN

Stimson States Senate Will Get Part of Data Today.

JOHNSON REITERATES SECRET DATA DEMAND

California Hints "Coercion" Before Members Are Fully Advised.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover called in Chairman Borah, of the Senate foreign relations committee, yesterday to urge action on the London naval treaty before the Senate goes home for the summer and was assured of prompt consideration.

However, Senator Borah declined to take any part in the dispute over procedure and said he did not think it mattered whether the pact was acted upon in the regular session or in the special session which the President is prepared to call.

Mr. Hoover summoned Senator Borah as Senate foes of the treaty claimed new gains in strength. It was the third consecutive day he has conferred with Senate leaders over the pact. While voicing no enthusiasm over the pact, Senator Borah made it plain that he would support it.

Stimson Attends Conference.

Secretary Stimson attended the White House parley and informed Mr. Borah that some of the papers demanded by Senator Johnson (Republican), California, would be sent to the Senate probably today.

Senator Johnson later issued a statement asserting that "to coerce action before members of the Senate are fully informed, to compel consideration before every scrap of information and every pertinent document is before them should be resented, not only by the foreign relations committee, but every individual senator."

Earlier in the day Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader, announced the original plan for taking up the treaty in a special session immediately following the regular session adjournment. There was talk Wednesday, after the President had called Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Allen, of Kansas, Republican advocates of the treaty, to the White House, of a move to take up the treaty in this session.

Statement By Borah

Senator Borah issued the following statement after his call at the executive mansion:

"The President expressed to me the desire to have the treaty disposed of before we finally adjourned, either at the regular session or at a special session. I said to him that my attitude was the same as it had been from the beginning; that is, that it is wholly immaterial to me whether it was disposed of at the regular session or at a special session, that so long as the Senate remained in session I would feel it my duty to urge the treaty be disposed of with all convenient dispatch.

"I did not say to the President, but I say now, that I have felt the committee was entitled to all the facts which would throw any light upon the treaty, even at the expense of wha some seem to think is delay. But when the facts are all in, I feel we should dispose of the treaty."

Senator Borah announced that as soon as the testimony on the treaty before the Senate committees is printed and the documents are received from Secretary Stimson he would call the committee together daily until it reported out the treaty.

Senator Johnson, who is awaiting the notes exchanged between this country and Great Britain prior the London conference, issued the following statement:

"Of course the executive department negotiates the treaties; but equally, of course, under the Constitution, no treaty becomes effectual until ratified by the Senate. The Constitution in a sense makes two coordinate barnches of the Government partners in treaty making. The duty devolving upon the Senate is equally important with that of the executive. The Senate performing its duty from necessity must have all information, all documents, and papers of every sort, upon which a treaty is based, that its action may be intelligent, and its duty performed with wisdom.

"To dney one partner in treaty making access to a knowledge of that which in the first instance induced teh negotiation of a completed document, is to abrogate the Constitution itself."

He added that senators should have an intimate knowledge of the treaty before they act.

Treaty Files Revealed.

The State Department published yesterday correspondence between this country and Great Britain and Japan regarding replacement of cruisers, showing agreement between the three nations on the subject.

The correspondence was initiated upon suggestions made at Senate committee hearings on the treaty that notes be exchanged removing the possibility that Great Britain might replace 6-inch-gun cruisers with 8-inch-gunners at time of obsolescence.

Replies from both countries indicated they concurred with the American view that any replacement would have to be made in the same gun-power, except that the British explained they had several ships carrying 7.5 guns which would be replaced with 6-inchers.

Two Tire Makers Cut Price Scale

Goodyear and General Announce Reductions as Crude Drops.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Many motorists were assured of a saving in the cost of automobile upkeep today when two tire companies—Goodyear and General—announced reductions ranging up to 5 per cent on most popular sizes. Other companies it was reported, would meet the price cut soon.

The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., one of the "Big Four" of the American tire industry, was the first to announce a price slash. It was followed by a reduction of about 5 per cent on all pneumatic tires and tubes by the General Tire & Rubber Co.

The reductions were coincident with the sensational drop in crude rubber prices, both in New York and London, which was the culmination of a steady decline since early in the year, which leading British and Dutch growers have attempted to curb through restricted production.

West Palm Beach, Fla., June 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Brooks today was granted a final decree of divorce from her husband, Reginald Brooks, New York and Palm Beach clubman. A property settlement has been arranged out of court, Mrs. Brooks said.

Mrs. Brooks claimed that Mr. Brooks has secreted alarm clocks about their Palm Beach home, setting the alarms at one hour intervals. She also charged him with parading through the house ringing cow bells and with other acts, which she said caused her health to break and necessitated her going to a hospital for a complete rest.

Senator Grundy reported no receipts. All of the expenditures, which were somewhat in excess of his testimony earlier in the week to the Senate campaign investigating committee, went to his State campaign committee.

PROSECUTOR URGES OUSTING RUM SPIES

Hart Says Clogged Courts Call for Change; Juries Scorn Informers.

HOPES TO CLEAR DOCKET

Recommendation that the police cease the use of special employes or informers in working up liquor cases was made yesterday by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart, who is in charge of prohibition cases in Police Court and who is responsible for the direction that all liquor cases take. The recommendation was made to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, who was out of the city and could not be reached for an expression.

Mr. Hart's recommendation followed disclosures that the liquor docket of the Police Court is in worse shape than it has been for more than two years. More than 350 cases are now on the docket awaiting trial before jury, records disclose. Most of these cases have originated within the past few months and in 90 per cent of them informers or special employes were used, Mr. Hart said.

Year to Clear Docket.

The assistant United State attorney pointed out that if the police use of informers is not permanently discontinued it should at least be stopped until the Police Court liquor docket can be cleared.

That, in itself, will require almost a year even if no more cases are booked, it was said. Under the present procedure of Police Court only two jury courts operate—and only one of them full time. Each week the United States attorney's office is allotted three days for jury trials, while the corporation counsel's office is allowed two. Two of the days given to the United States attorney's office are used exclusively for the trial of jury case liquor violations. The other day is devoted to trial of other cases originating under the United States statutes.

Mr. Hart is pessimistic about the outlook and declares that, while his office has been successful in securing a few convictions on the mere charge of possession, if the police are permitted to use informers merely for the purpose of securing a search warrant, it will be absolutely impossible to clear up the Police Court liquor docket with the present facilities.

More Courts Needed.

"Of course," said Mr. Hart, "if there were more jury courts the matter could be handled easily." He points out that what is really needed is at least two jury courts going five days a week on liquor cases alone.

"If that were done," Mr. Hart said, "Assistant United States Attorney Julian I. Richards and myself could clean up the cases in short order and keep the docket clear."

Mr. Hart estimates that only three liquor cases can be disposed of before a jury in one court a day which makes an average of six cases a week.

The recommendation made by Mr. Hart is in line with several others of a similar nature made by his branch of the United States attorney's office during recent years. One recommendation resulted in decision by the superintendent of police to discard the use of paid informers. The practice was dropped for a long time, but recently has been revived, the informers being glorified under the name of "special employes."

That recommendation and decision came after several cases had been thrown out of court because the jury did not believe the testimony of the informer. Since then the police have as a general rule declined to present the informer in court as a witness.

Police Shield Spies.

This has resulted in the loss of several cases, but the police have been more or less adamant. Their position, it was understood, has been that if the informer testifies he will be no more use to the police as he will be immediately "spotted."

The police also have held that the informer swears that he purchases whisky and on that basis a warrant is obtained, and the man arrested is charged by the police with sale and possession. The police now are insisting when demands are made that they produce the informer to bolster their cases that the cases be sent to the grand jury under the Jones act. Then and only then are they prepared to disclose the informant.

Mr. Hart and his office handle 99 per cent of all cases originating in the District under the prohibition law. They decide whether a case has merit that would warrant it being sent to the grand jury or whether it should be tried in Police Court.

If the latter course is pursued the charge against the defendant is mere possession. That happens to be the fate of most liquor cases, since Mr. Hart and Mr. Richards do not believe that the statement of the informer will bolster a sale charge.

18 Posts Vacant On Police Force

Civil Service List Has No Names of Eligibles to Submit.

Eighteen vacancies exist in the Police Department because the department has no men qualified under the law for appointment, it was learned yesterday.

The present eighteen vacancies probably will be increased by at least three or four more before the end of the fiscal year and then the total will take a sudden jump, due to the provision in the pending District appropriation bill for 49 new men.

The situation developed as a result of the failure of the Civil Service Commission to keep available a list of eligibles as determined by physical and mental examinations. The eligible list was entirely exhausted before the commission undertook to hold an examination last week. But so far the results of the examination have not been determined and there is no list of eligibles from among whom men may be selected to fill vacancies due to various causes. The existing number of vacancies is the largest since the war period.

White House Papers Awaited.

Justice Wheat, whose nomination as Chief Justice of the District Supreme Court was confirmed Wednesday by the Senate, will take the oath of his new office as soon as the necessary papers come from the White House, it was learned yesterday.

The justice's haste, it was said, is made necessary due to the fact that the vacancy existing on the bench due to the resignation of former Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy can not be filled until the new chief justice takes office. As the matter now stands no vacancy on the bench exists.

This point was brought out some time ago by Attorney General Mitchell, who asserted that as soon as Justice Wheat becomes chief justice the existing vacancy on the bench will be filled.

CHINATOWN UNDER GUARD OF POLICE in New York and Newark, N. J., according to Associated Press dispatches.

In Chicago Chinese, using the modern method of gang warfare, rode through the Chinese district spraying a rain of bullets and terror in the section. They are said to have been makin gan effort to put Frank Chin "on the spot." He escaped uninjured, however.

Another report from oBston told of an attack on the headquarters of the Hip Sing Tong. Seven shots riddled the headquarters, but no one was injured.

One victim of the outbreak was Ha Gong, a waiter in New York, who was shot dead by two men near his home. Gong is believed to have been a member of the Hip Sing. The other was Eng Sing, a Newark laundryman, who was found with a hatchet in his skull.

While police here believe that there will be no trouble among the local Chinese, they decided to place guards, however, in the District.

Several calls were received from prominent Chinese merchants asking for police protection. Both the On Leong and Hip Sing tongs here are reported to have communicated with the authorities, requesting protection.

Beside the uniformed guards, Acting Captain Jerry Sullivan, of the Sixth precinct station, has detailed a special squad of plainclothesmen to operate in the section.

TARIFF IS RETURNED TO CONFEREES AGAIN

Four Democratic Points of Order Against Rates Upheld in Senate.

FREE HIDES DEFEATED

(Associated Press.)

The tariff bill ran against four insurmountable barriers in the Senate yesterday, but hurdled a fifth in the House and last night was back in conference for the fourth time awaiting correction of its rate sections.

After Vice President Curtis had upheld four Democratic points of order against the conference rates on cheese, watch jewels, rayons and a provision relating to temporary free entry of cattle from Mexico and Canada for pasturage, the House defeated, 181 to 140, a minority proposal to instruct House managers to accept the Senate's free listing of hides, leathers and shoes.

Move for Free Hides Unexpected.

The decision on the points of order automatically returned the bill to conference. Both houses reappointed their conferees and Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the Senate conference committee, said he would call a meeting today in the hope that the corrections could be made and the bill reported to the Senate late today or Monday. Saturday usually is an off-day.

While the Vice President's decision was no surprise to Republican leaders, the move in the House for free hides and shoes came unexpectedly. Immediately after that branch agreed to another conference with the Senate, Representative Garner, of Texas, minority leader and a tariff conferee, made the instruction motion which lost by 41 on a record vote.

Cheers Greet Vote.

The Senate had kept the three leather commodities on the free list after failing in four attempts to write a scale of duties acceptable to all sides. The conference agreement carries the House rates of 10 per cent on hides, from 12½ to 20 per cent on leathers and 20 per cent on shoes, all now on the free list.

Loud cheers and yells greeted Speaker Longworth's announcement of the vote, the first record ballot to be taken in that branch on these controverted levies.

Seven Democrats joined 174 Republicans against the Garner proposal while 30 Republicans combined with 110 Democrats for it.

Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, whose point of order against the flexible provision last week necessitated returning the bill to conference for a rewriting of this clause, made the points against watch jewels and cheese, while Senator Hayden (Democrat), Arizona, won his point on the cattle pasturage item.

Overrules One Point.

Mr. Barkley was prepared to contend the conferees had gone beyond the Senate and House rates on rayon, but did not make this point. However, the Vice President, believing it was to be made, had studied the question and sustained the point as if it had been made. While not going into detail on this rate, Mr. Curtis said the conferees clearly had violated their authority.

The Chair was in doubt as to another point affecting watches not designed for wear on the person, but said inasmuch as the bill was going back to conference, "it would seem that the amendment objected to might well be made more definite and certain."

By inserting the word "unset" in the watch jewel section, the conferees were held to have raised the bill rate of 10 per cent considerably.

Senator Hayden's point against the cattle section claimed the conferees had violated their authority in laying down two rules, one providing for free entry of cattle for pasturage for eight months from Canada and the other providing free entry for three months from Mexico.

Fess Defends Flexible Clause.

Despite the fact that it had rid itself of the bill early in the day, the Senate debated the tariff nearly all afternoon.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, defended the new flexible provision, saying the "only question dividing us now is whether when the Tariff Commission makes a change, it should be operated upon by Congress or the President, and I hold it should be the latter."

Mr. Fess referred to the Supreme Court decision upholding the constitutionality of the existing flexible provision, but Senator George (Democrat), Georgia, contended this opinion was unsound.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, joined Senator Fess in defense of the new flexible clause.

Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, placed in the record a letter to President Hoover from George L. Berry, labor leader, protesting the views expressed on the tariff by Matthew Woll, head of the American Wage Earners Protective Conference.

On the Rules of Traffic
By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Merely because a motorist parks within the prescribed distance of 6 inches from the curb, and there is no sign prohibiting him from placing his car there, is no assurance that he still may not be violating the regulations. He still must consider the width of the roadway.

The District code contains a provision which prohibits parking in any street, alley or other roadway where parking reduces the width of the open roadway to less than 11 feet.

Example: A driver parks his car in a narrow street opposite a line of automobiles standing at the other curb. There is barely room for a car to pass through the center of the roadway, which means that he has violated this provision in the code since the average width of a car is 5 feet.

HOSTILE INDIA TRIBE MENACES PESHAWAR

Driver of Constabulary Bus Killed During Ambush Near Village.

PROCESSION FOR GANDHI

Bombay, June 5 (A.P.).—Hostile episodes on the northwestern frontier have taken the spotlight from the Nationalist salt raiders in troubled India.

A warlike Lashkar (tribal force) consisting of Afridis and Zakka Khels tonight are advancing on the key city of Peshawar, and while authorities here felt that troops of the northwestern area would be adequate to deal with this advance, there was some consternation here.

The Peshawar region has been in a troubled state for some time. The crisis arose on the night of May 28, when Nari Khwar, an outpost, was fired upon.

On the same day some 3,000 Kuki Khel Afridis, carrying a red standard, assembled at Mardan, where they were joined on May 30 by contingents from the Malikdin Khel Kamber and other Kuki Khels.

Bus Driver Killed.

The combined sections, marching with eight standards, set out that same day—May 30—and on June 1 were reported to have reached a point in the Bara Valley, about 18 miles from the Peshawar district border.

There they held a jirga (council) for several days, discussing whether to advance nearer Peshawar, and as a result split into two parties. The Moderates stayed there, but the Lashkar, or hostile element, continued to advance and since has been joined by thousands of Zakka Khels.

Coupled with this it was reported that unrest is increasing among the tribes further north. On Tuesday, two buses hired by the frontier constabulary, returning empty from Subhan Khwar, were ambushed en route to Shabkadar Fort, almost within the limits of Shabkadar village. The driver of the first bus was shot dead and the vehicle was burned, but the second driver escaped with minor wounds.

Demonstration for Gandhi

Evidence indicated that inhabitants of the Gigani quarter of the village were implicated. Their quarters were searched yesterday and arrests were made.

Bombay observed the end of the first month of Mahatma Gandhi's imprisonment with a large silent procession tonight. Unlike most such processions, banners with anti-British slogans were absent. In their place was only a large picture of Gandhi, carried on a motor truck.

A sprinkling of Moslems, including Pathans, Sikhs and a large number of women dressed in orange-colored saris, took part in the procession. The parade passed through the principal streets, including the fort area, and ended at the Maidan Esplanade for a mass meeting.

IRKED WITH PHONES, CLERK CUTS WIRES

system on the part of many individuals in both House and Senate.

The dials were ordered out of the Senate and its office building. That was bad enough. But when things start on the "Hill" they sometimes roll on and on until they affect hundreds and even thousands who were not involved in the starting.

So it seems to have been in the war on the dial telephones. Federal employes, naturally interested in all that pertains to the Government, watch with interest all that is said and done at the Capitol. And in cases where public sympathy is aroused the old-fashioned game of "follow the leader" begins.

But to get back to the war on dial telephones. When the dials were installed in Government office buildings, all booths were supplied with the new-fangled telephones in which you drop a nickel and then dial for your number. Fine, say the Federal employes, if you can see to dial the number. But, they charge, in many of the booths there are no lights and further the booths are located in dark hallways in temporary buildings still in use. 'Tis tough and getting no better fast.

In the Bureau of the Census, as in all other Government departments, all personal calls must be made from booth telephones. The coming of the dials to the darkened booths spelled trouble with a capital T.

For a few days only grumblings were heard. Then one fine morning wires of the phone were found cut. The telephone company made repairs. The next day the new wires were snipped. More repairs. For two weeks the snip and bind process continued with the telephone company one step to the rear.

Finally in desperation the company connected a telltale buzzer and the census department assigned a man to watch for signs of more snipping. He waited not long. The buzzer sounded and the guilty "snipper" was caught coming from the booth.

Taken before the chief clerk of the bureau, he was questioned:

"Were you ever employed by the telephone company or have you any grudge against it?"

"No, I read where the Senate got rid of these things and I didn't see why we should have to put up with them. You can't see to dial a number and you can't get your nickel back if you dial a wrong one."

Visibly affected, the chief clerk refused to turn the man over to the company for prosecution. Instead, the culprit, a temporary employe, married and with two children, was dismissed.

Officials of the telephone company last night tacitly admitted "reports of trouble" in a "building in the vicinity of Sixth and B streets."

BUTLER FOR SHOUSE SEIZED AS ROBBER

Police Charge Looting of Gift Shop; Say He Stole From Employer.

FIGHT FOLLOWS CHASE

Police last night were conducting an investigation in the recent activities of Axel W. Boya, 29 years old, who was captured after a struggle early yesterday after he is alleged to have stolen articles valued at $400 from the Gift Shop, 1228 Connecticut avenue.

Boya, who identified himself as a butler employed by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, is being held at the Third Precinct Statibn. Boya admitted, police say, having stolen a quantity of silverware from the Shouse residence at 2230 Massachusetts avenue, some of which they say they found in his apartment in Eighteenth street near G street.

Boya was taken into custody by Acting Sergt. James L. Rochford and Private John R. Asheton. Boya dropped the alleged loot, police say, as he saw the police approach and started to run. He was caught after a chase, and, it is asserted, attempted to battle with the policemen but was quickly subdued.

As result of an anonymous call police of the Fourth Precinct early yesterday arrested two men in the basement beneath a Piggly Wiggly store at 1247 Four-and-a-half street southwest. The men, who are believed to have entered the basement by smashing a window, gave their names as Raymond L. Howard, 26 years old, of E street near Fourth street southwest, and Walter J. Martin, 34 years old, of N street near Sixth street southwest. They are being held at the precinct station pending investigation.

RU MBUY GUILT LAW URGED BY SHEPPARD

Father of Eighteenth Amend- Charges Lawlessness to Purchasers.

ACTION NOW UNLIKELY

(Associated Press.)

Legislation to make buyers of liquor equally guilty with bootleggers was advocated before a Senate judiciary subcommittee yesterday by Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, as the Senate received the batch of prohibition legislation just passed by the House.

While there appeared to be little prospect for action at this session on any dry law measures, Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, said he would refer House bills carrying out the Law Enforcement Commission's program to subcommittees at the regular session on Monday.

Senator Sheppard, who fathered the eighteenth amendment, in laying his bills before the committee, asserted that "the whole structure of liquor lawlessness rests upon the buyer of illicit liquor."

"It is indeed a grotesque distinction," the Texan asserted, "which holds a purchaser innocent as he reaches out for illicit liquor with one hand while extending payment to the bootlegger with the other and then transforms him into a violator the moment the money passes to the bootlegger and the liquor to the purchaser."

Senator Ashurst (Democrat), Arizona, observed that "the only way any one could make a purchase with impunity under the Supreme Court ruling would be to sit in an office and have some one he had never talked to before, walk in and pour liquor down his throat." He said he did not see how the wets could get any satisfaction out of that.

"Even then," returned Mr. Sheppard, "the purchaser would possess it."

Senator Steiwer (Republican), Oregon, is chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the Sheppard bill and he adjourned the hearing until next week to await a report from Attorney General Mitchell.

There is some difference of opinion in the Senate over the constitutionality of the Christopherson bill, passed Wednesday by the House. The bill would permit United States commissioners to try minor offenders without juries. This legislation has been urged to clear up crowded court dockets.

Starving Recluse Foodless 25 Days

Davis Happy at Approach of Death; Weakness More Marked.

Danville, Va., June 5.—Maintaining a stubborn refusal to break his self-imposed fast, Frank W. Davis, aged recluse, who is attempting to end his earthly existence by starving himself to death, today considered that the passing of another day, his twenty-fifth, without food had brought him that much nearer a death which he says he happily welcomes.

No change was noted today in his condition except that he feels slightly weaker. He seems to realize that his prediction of death by tomorrow will not be fulfilled as his strength still permits him to shift about in his bed.

He continues to drink water but has refused other liquids offered him.

By JAMES HAY, JR.

WEIRD and bewildering as it is in a republic of free and equal men, the idea seems to be percolating through senatorial halls and heads that nobody can be nominated and elected to the Upper House of Congress without spending large amounts of the mazooma, doubloons, cash and coin of the realm.

It was all right to talk in the grand style about purity in elections and to abhor the thought of gold influencing ballots as long as the fist of retribution could single out such easy victims as the well Insulated Mr. Smith and the lavish Mr. Vare.

They were thrown out on their ambitious faces, and any and every other man in the Senate was left free to draw his toga more tightly about his pulchritudinous person and feel lucky and light-hearted because he hadn't been obliged to spend so freely—or to thank the gods that Jim Reed hadn't got after him.

• • • •

BUT the big expenditures are pouring in too fast nowadays for anybody to believe that the sun of expulsion will soon rise again on the horizon of senatorial life.

The Nye investigating committee was informed by Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick that, in the pursuit of her ambition to escape from the barn-like vastness of the House and to do her legislating in the smaller and cozier chamber of the Senate, she had checked out of her own bank account some $252,000.

Hard on her heels came the Pennsylvania boys, calmly revealing to an unsurprised world that a candidate's expenditure of something like a third of a million dollars in a primary fight was nothing to get excited about in the Commonwealth that learned its politics from Boies Penrose.

• • • •

AND, if Dame Rumor is shooting as close to the mark on this target range as she usually does, Mr. Nye and his able associated investigators are going to find that considerable cash outlay has been accomplished in other primary fights.

Moreover, although diligent search has been made for the genius who could set up a scheme to limit fairly the cost of a campaign, such a brilliant, ebullient and record-breaking mathematico-statesman has not yet shown above the water line.

The general idea, when disentangled from all the high-blown talk about ideals and incorruptibility, seems to be that the boys will be considered not exactly fair, fine and al fresco if they ladle out the dough with steam shovels, but that they will be entirely pure so long as they carry it in buckets and don't let it jingle too loud when pouring it out.

There is, too, apparently, a saving difference between the vulgar job of buying votes and the highly efficient business of donating important money for "organization purposes."

Wherefore and consequently, a poor boy may still dream of going to the Senate, but, if he is a wise poor boy, he will dream of getting rich before he runs.

BISHOP CANNON WALKS OUT ON SENATE LOBBY INQUIRY

did have. His offense yesterday was not one of refusing to answer questions but simply walking out.

Senator Walsh, who has contended that the committee had a case of contempt because of his refusal to answer questions said that his walking out "constitutes a plain case of contempt." The committe does not intend to do anything, however, until Wednesday when its most somersaulting chairman, Senator Caraway, returns. There is a question even on the offense of yesterday, as to whether a quorum does not have to be present.

Quorum Not Present.

A quorum was not present. Senator Borah, of Idaho, walked into the committee room a few minutes after the bishop had made his take-off, only to look in amazement at an empty glass of water where the bishop was supposed to sit and to be greeted by shouts of laughter from the crowd.

But one got the impression that the bishop was not as well pleased with the performance as his mentor, Mr. Slemp.

The bishop had only been before the committee a few minutes. As soon as Senator Blaine started to ask him a question he produced a statement and said that it would probably change the committee's procedure. As a matter of fact, it left the committee without a procedure.

The statement was the same as that which the bishop has been issuing all along to the effect that he was not going to permit the Catholics and the wets to persecute him.

Whoever it is who has been after the bishop—he will never know or probably he does know—how close they were to getting him. The questioning yesterday would have probably done it.

Watches for Crowd.

But getting back to the bishop's ceremonious exit, he hesitated as he neared the door apparently as if to see if the crowd were following him as it has so often in the past. It was too stunned to do anything for a minute or so and then it developed that it was a very mixed crowd, there being some handclapping, some hissing and a couple of remarks that would not be fit to print. At the height of it all one woman walked up to a group of newspapermen and said:

"Please don't present this man Cannon to the public as a representative of the Christian people who believe in prohibition."

After Senators Blaine, Walsh and Borah consulted for a few minutes, the committee adjourned and the crowd gathered in clusters to discuss the bishop's action and prohibition in general.

"I tell you, if you say conditions are not worse now than they were before prohibition it is because you do not know what is going on," said one intense voice.

Argument Lengthens Out.

As this argument lengthened out one fellow who could not get into the circle kept tugging at the sleeve of one of the main participants.

"Ask the dry guy," he urged, "if he knows how many saloons there were in Reading, Pa., before prohibition and how many there are now. Go ahead, ask him that."

What might be called a minor league argument was taking place a few feet away.

"I have been all over the country," said a stout, ruddy-faced fellow, "and I will tell you the whole country is wet."

"Have you ever been to Minneapolis?"

"No, but I have been everywhere else."

"Have you ever been to Cleveland?"

"No, but I have been everywhere else."

And so it went. Occasionally the widely traveled man's wife would prompt him. It was two hours before the room was entirely cleared.

May Ask More Power.

One procedure which the committee is considering is to go back to the Senate and ask for a broadening of its authority in order to pursue the 1928 expenditures revolving around Mr. Slemp and Bishop Cannon.

But in view of the length to which such an investigation might go and because of the bishop's influence, too, it is seriously doubtful if the additional authority could be gotten.

There is quite a determination in the decision of Senators Blaine and Walsh to wait until Senator Caraway returns and lay the whole thing in his lap. It was Mr. Caraway who started it all.

Both Senators Walsh and Blaine have been placed in a most unfair light, the one being a Catholic and the other a wet. They personally never had any interest in Bishop Cannon. The political feeling against him comes from the Southern Democrats, the great majority of them members of Bishop Cannon's own religious faith, and it is based upon the methods he has pursued against them in the past.

WEARY PASSENGERS DISEMBARK AS ZEPPELIN STOPS AT SEVILLE

tossed about in storm after storm during the last night of their journey here. They had little sleep last night, but gamely asserted that the experience was worth their discomfort.

Dr. Eckener said the airship stood the terrific weather splendidly. It showed no sign of damage. The German skipper posed in a cabin window, but did not go aground.

The Prince Alfonso, Infante of Orleans, a cousin of King Alfonso, smiled wanly as he descended and greeted his waiting wife, Mrs. Mary Pierce, of New York, met by her husband, who made a hurried trip from Paris, said the storm had been very hard on her and all of the group.

Sir Hubert Remains Aboard.

Among those who disembarked, ending their voyage, besides the prince and Mrs. Pierce, were Col. Emilio Herrera, Spanish aviation official; Dr. Jeronimo Mejias, King Alfonso's personal physician; Garcia Sanchez, author.

Sir Hubert and Lady Wilkins did not disembark at Seville, but continued on to Friedrichshafen. In the confusion of the hurried landing and departure of the Zeppelin, it was first erroneously reported that they had disembarked. Jesus Herradz, a wealthy Spanish lawyer, embarked for Friedrichshafen.

Attendants Work Feverishly.

The Graf headed in a southerly directions, for reasons not made known, but supposed to be in keeping with the Graf commander's practice of avoiding head winds.

Only about 3,000 persons saw the Graf grounded. The flying field was in bad condition because of the rains. The disembarking passengers stepped ankle deep in mud. A mist swept the field intermittently. It was during a lull in the wind that the airship was brought to a stop.

The craft was not completely harnessed to the mast, at Dr. Eckener's orders, because of the possibility of sudden renewal of high winds which might sweep her about and cause damage to her hull. Instead, a ground crew held her beside the mast while racing attendants worked feverishly to land passengers and put provisions aboard.

Police Charge Crowd.

While this was going on a section of the crowd got out of hand and surged toward the Graf. The police charged them and a number were injured.

"That was a pretty snappy half hour, doctor," an American in the crowd shouted as the Graf bore away from the ground. The skipper, in a cabin window, caught the words, smiled and waved acknowledgment and as he turned to his duties the Zeppelin faded into the distance.

Alfonso Praises Hoover.

Madrid, June 5 (A.P.).—The Infante Alfonso of Orleans, cousin of King Alfonso, who this afternoon completed his voyage on the Graf Zeppelin, tonight asked the Associated Press to send his warmest thanks to President Hoover, who received him so cordially, and to the people of the United States for their courtesies and interest in him.

The prince said he was delighted with the reception he received in the United States. He said he hoped to make another visit when opportunity permits.

The infante expressed admiration for the "exceptional gifts of Mr. Hoover" and said he was delighted with the President's interest in and liking for King Alfonso, Spain, and the Spanish people.

Hunt was arrested several weeks ago in an apartment house on K street northwest near Eighteenth street and was charged with intoxication. He posted $10 collateral and when arraigned demanded a jury trial. The demand was refused and the court ordered an attachment issued for him. The attachment was never served. COX URGES REPEAL OF PROHIBITION LAW

SHOUSE ATTACKS TARIFF

ture or traffic in alcoholic liquors anywhere in America by private or corporate intereats." Disagreeing with Dwight W. Morrow, Republican senatorial candidate in New Jersey, Mr. Cox said the Federal Government now has control over interstate traffic that would prohibit shipments from a wet State into a dry one. Mr. Morrow was quoted as saying there was need for such restriction.

Though many of Mr. Cox's friends have been urging him to seek election to the United States Senate, he declared tonight that he will not be a candidate for any office. He also eliminated himself as a possible candidate for governor.

"The suggestion of a return to executive's duties is unnecessary. And any idea of standing for the Senate is entirely out of line with my plans from the vantage ground of private life, to aid the cause of liberal government," he said.

Overshadows Other Issues.

Mr. Cox's declaration in favor of repeal of the prohibition amendment completely overshadowed discussion of national issues by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national Democratic executive committee and State issues by other speakers.

Mr. Shouse, before entering on a criticism of the tariff bill now before Congress, declared Democrats are confident of victory this fall "because we know the people are tired of the record of poor judgment, indecision, feebleness and inefficiency that has characterized the present administration."

"They are dissatisfied with a Republican Congress that has failed of important legislation and with a Republican President who has shown himself incapable of leading and whose total of administration is so nearly a cipher," he said.

Mr. Cox stressed the same idea by asserting that the "complete failure of the party in power turns the public thought back to the principles of Jefferson, Jackson and Wilson.

Sees G. O. P. Embarrassed.

"The Republican party, pretender of moral righteousness and economic wisdom, finds itself in embarrassment rarely experienced by any political organization in our history. On the one hand we find crime, criminals and corruption as an index to unwise policies; on the other, largest armies of unemployment mankind has known, the natural outgrowth of a false economic policy."

In his discussion of the prohibition question Mr Cox declared the Anti-saloon League "no longer commands respect as revelations show that most of its leaders have been inspired by job-seeking impulses, and that regardless of its original purpose it is now a political organization, resorting on occasions to corrupt methods." He said its name now is a misnomer as there is no movement for restoration of the saloon, and declared it should be abandoned or rechristened.

Turning to State matters, Mr. Cox referred to the recent penitentiary fire which resulted in the death of more than 300 convicts, asking "if it is not a "sad commentary" that these deaths had to occur "before the State was reminded of what was done seventeen years ago as protection against the probabilities of such a disaster." Mr. Cox, as governor, had planned a new prison at the present London farm which was not carried through by his successors. He charged "petty politics" as being responsible for not going through with the plans.

Analyzes Hoover Regime.

Starting his analysis of the Hoover administration, Mr. Shouse said it came into power on two promises—"one, that the prosperity of the country would be maintained, of which pledge of relief the farm industry was a part—an open pledge, the other that the interests that have so long fattened on the public should be confirmed in their privileges and given further opportunities to exploit the public—this the secret agreement made in the little smoke-filled back room. The year and a half of the life of the administration has shown which of these engagements has been kept."

As to farm relief, he said the only measure enacted so far has "indicated that half a billion dollars of the people's money is being wasted in sporadic gambling on the grain exchanges in a futile effort to rig the market so that the price of wheat and corn will stay up. The professional grain gamblers have proved smarter than the amateurs, who sought to buck their game which is rather to be expected."

Sees License to Loot

Of the tariff bill, Mr. Shouse termed it "so vicious a piece of legislation that even the Republican newspapers are generally advising the President to veto it, so barefaced is the pretense of aid to the farmer and so plain the grant of licenses to loot to the men who have already amassed great fortunes by exploitation of the people through tariff favors.

"It was log-rolling and hidden trading, which it would be no misnomer to style bribery, that brought forth the Grundy bill after the Democrats and the Republican Progressives had purged the Smoot finance committee iniquity of the worst of its extortions, and had every Democrat voted against it the result would have been the same. And at every mutation of the ghastly evolution of the worst tariff bill in history, President Hoover stood behind it."

Burke Protests Release of Man

Police Captain Complains at Action Taken by Murray.

Protest was filed yesterday with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, by Capt. F. S. W. Burke, commander of the First Precinct, against the release of a colored prisoner by Assistant District Attorney Murray.

The prisoner, who gave his name as Lloyd Marshall, of High Point, N. C., was charged with carrying concealed weapons and was arrested after he was said to have been found carrying a loaded pistol in his pocket the morning of May 29. The man acted in a manner which excited their suspicion, the policemen said. A loaded pistol was said to have been found in Marshall's pocket. He was arrested. Subsequent inquiry was said by police to have disclosed him to be a recently released convict.

Capt. Burke said that he thought Mr. Murray had "made a serious mistake" when he refused to prosecute and nolle prossed the charge and Marshall was released. Maj. Pratt forwarded Capt. Burke's report to United States District Attorney Leo A. Rover.

JUDGE DRYS OPPOSE DEFEATED IN INDIANA

Senator Watson Misses First State Convention Since 1884.

HYDE SOUNDS KEYNOTE

Indianapolis, Ind., June 5 (A.P.).—Judge Benjamin M. Willoughby of the Indiana Supreme Court, whose decisions in liquor cases have brought him into disfavor with the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, was defeated for renomination at the Republican State convention today.

To make the race for the Supreme Court bench at the November election the Republicans nominated in Willoughby's stead his fellow-townsman from Vincennes, Circuit Judge Thomas B. Coulter, who had approval of the drys.

Judge Willoughby was the only one of ten incumbents seeking renomination to meet defeat. Six years ago he was opposed by the Anti-Saloon League and won out by the scant margin of one vote in the election in which President Coolidge carried the State by 211,000 votes.

Hyde Keynote Speaker.

The convention produced only one other contest of any importance. This was for an Appellate Court judgeship and involved a factional fight among Republican politicians in Indianapolis. Judge Charles R. Remy, incumbent, was renominated despite the opposition of George V. Coffin, Indianapolis Republican leader, who supported Alexander G. Cavins, assistant U. S. District Attorney.

The keynote address was delivered by Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture, who declared that President Hoover's prompt action had forestalled an industrial panic and predicted that the Farm Board would work out the eventual salvation of agriculture.

A platform was adopted commending the Republican administration of affairs in State and Nation. A proposal for a Prohibition referendum made by the Lake County delegation never was placed before the convention for a vote.

Watson, Robinson Absent.

Gov. Harry G. Leslie, in an address, reviewed his administration of State affairs.

Neither United States Senator James E. Watson nor Arthur R. Robinson were present, both remaining in Washington because of the pending tariff bill. It was the first State convention that Senator Watson had missed since 1884.

The State ticket as finally approved follows:

Secretary of State, Otto G. Fifield. Crown Point; auditor, Archie N. Bobbitt, English; supreme court clerk, Charles L. Biederwolf, Fort Wayne; judge supreme court, First district, Thomas B. Coulter, Vincennes; judge supreme court, Fourth district, Willard B. Gemmill, Marion; judges of appellate court, First district, Solon A. Enloe, Danville, and Charles R. Remy, Indianapolis; judges appellate court, Second district, Willis C. McMahan, Crown Point, and Alonso L. Nichols, Winchester; treasurer, Harry Nichols, Madison; superintendent of public instruction, Roy P. Wiehart, Union City.

Slayer Meets Death Smiling

Hawkins Electrocuted at Jail for Killing His Sweetheart.

Andrew Jackson Hawkins, colored, 33 years old, was electrocuted at the District Jail yesterday morning at 10 o'clock for the murder of his sweetheart, Ruth Watkins, on December 22, 1928. He walked to the chair without faltering and smiled as he met the doctors who shortly would pronounce him dead.

Within ten minutes after he had left his cell, Dr. A. M. McDonald and Dr. A. J. Connelly, acting physicians at the jail, pronounced him dead. All prisoners had been removed from the cells abutting on the high-ceilinged corridor in which the lethal chair was set up. Blankets had been hung over the doors and windows of the rotunda, so that no one but those with the prisoner could see the procession from the death cell.

Hawkins was originally sentenced to die on December 4, 1929, but had had six stays of execution. Last week President Hoover refused to commute the sentence to life imprisonment. Hawkins admitted the shooting, but contended it had been done in a fit of rage.

thought best to delay action until the short session in December.

In the meantime, he said, he would ask the President to direct the Bureau of the Budget to make a survey and to draft a bill that would be satisfactory to all concerned.

GOVERNOR CONTEST JOINED BY BROENING

Mayor of Baltimore, Ritchie May Be Unopposed for G. O. P. Nominations.

LIQUOR STAND IN DOUBT

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., June 5.—Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore, cast his hat in the ring for the governorship on the Republican ticket when the certificate of his candidacy was filed today with the Secretary of State in Annapolis.

The action was taken by Mrs. Lulu E. Powell, well known for her work among Republican women in Maryland, and Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, who has been suggested as a possible candidate for the State Legislature, while Mayor Broening was attending the graduation exercises at the Naval Academy. He sat close by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, who recently announced his candidacy for a fourth term on the Democratic ticket as the only other avowed aspirant for the position.

See Each Unopposed.

Strong supporters of both believe that Mayor Broening and Gov. Ritchie will be unopposed in their parties, particularly in view of the fact tha tthe only other entrant in the race, David G. McIntosh, jr., a Democrat, recently withdrew and left the field open to the governor. Another group of Republicans looked to David A. Robb to make the next move in the gubernatorial situation.

Although belief had prevailed for several months that Mayor Broening would be a candidate, his announcement came with suddenness because of his disinclination to make known his plans. No mention was made of his platform, except that he would abode by the one adopted by the party, which holds its convention in early September. His stand on prohibition also was left in the air.

Text of Mayor's Statement.

The mayor's statement follows:

"During the past several months there have come to me from every section of the State messages encouraging and urging me to become a candidate for the office of governor.

"While the aspiration to be governor is one worthy to be cherished by any man, I have, nevertheless, delayed pressing my personal ambitions till public sentiment appeared sufficiently crystallized.

"The offers of support which have been extended are, however, from sources so representative of the business and professional life of our State and are so impressive in their number that one could not fail to give them most serious consideration.

"My experience in public life has been such that I am fully aware of the responsibilities that attach to this high office and the opportunity for public service which it affords, and with these considerations clearly before me I have concluded at this time to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

"We are confronted with important and serious issues in the affairs of the State, which deserve the attentive interest of the voters. These issues I shall discuss fully and frankly from time to time as soon as the party platform has been adopted."

Jury Convicts Woman Of Driving While Drunk

Edith Berger, beautiful 24-year-old titian-haired woman, was convicted in Police Court yesterday by a jury on a charge of driving while drunk. The jury recommended probation.

Testimony was to the effect that the woman had been arrested when garbed in pajamas and a fur coat at 3 o'clock on a cold November morning. Police of the Thirteenth Precinct differed as to whether she was drunk or sober and the young woman herself declared she was sober. She told the jury that she was ill and arising from bed had entered her automobile for the purpose of seeking out an all-night drug store when apprehended. Attorney William R. Ives appeared for the woman.

Commissioners Study Loud-Speaker Protest

Restriction on the use of radio loud speakers in either public or private places is under consideration by the District Commissioners.

The new regulation was drafted by William W. Bride, corporation counsel, who said he agreed with Maj. Henry G. Pratt, Superintendent of Police, that something should be done to relieve complaining persons of loud speakers of their neighbors or nearby business concerns. Maj. Pratt suggested that regulation fix a curfew hour for loud speakers, but Mr. Bride said he thought the reasonableness of the hour should be left to the court to decide in each case.

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—A jury in a preliminary hearing today in supreme court decided that a release signed by Florence Sharp Willard, former actress, in July, 1927, was a bar to her $500,000 breach of promise suit against Joseph Hann, wealthy candy manufacturer.

AMERICANS IN CHINA FLEE REBELS' MARCH

Foreigners in Changsa Take Refuge on Island Under Boats' Protection.

NATIONALISTS FALL BACK

Shanghai, June 5 (A.P.).—The Nationalist government armies retreated today to Huan and in Shantung Provinces before victorious rebel onslaughts on widely separated battlefields. On two other fronts—central Hunan north of Hankow, and along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway in northern Hunan, the Nationalists were in a precarious condition after a month of fighting with 400,000 men engaged on the opposing sides.

Because of civil war and banditry, conditions have become so unsettled that foreign consuls in Hankow were reported today to have decided to urge foreigners to leave the provinces of Hupen, Hunan and Kiangsi.

Foreigners Flee Changsa.

Moving northward through Hunan Province, 80,000 Kwangsi Province rebels, joined by a horde of bandits, swarmed into Changsha, chasing northward the 10,000 Nationalists, who made feeble resistance. The fleeing Nationalists are endeavoring to return to their armies north of Hankow to resume the defense against the northern rebels' attacking forces in Hunan Province.

American and other foreigners of Changsha, on the approach of the rebel army, took refuge on an island in the Siang River, off the city. Here they were under protection of American and British river gunboats, commanded, respectively, by Rear Admiral Thomas T. Craven and Admiral MacLean.

Three provinces away in the northeast, the northern alliance rebels forced their way across the Yellow River and drove the Nationalists back toward Tsinan. The city's fall was believed to be but a matter of time.

Japanese Residents Move Out.

Japanese residents fled in trains to Tsingtao, 250 miles eastward on the coast. The railroad may be cut at any time by the rebels, who are advancing along it toward Tsinan from a point 60 miles eastward.

Nationalist evacuation of Shantung Province is considered a possibility, in order to shorten their defensive lines along the Haichow-Tungkwan Railway. Should the Nationalists give way in this area, the rebels may have a clear field to Nanking, capital of the Nationalist government.

VERDICT BY NIGHT IN BOMB TRIAL, HINT

mond Lewis, officials of a Cleveland, Ohio, concern manufacturing tubing similar to that offered in evidence. Both said that the tubing in the bomb and tubing taken from the garage were gas welded.

Mr. Lewis explained that very little gas-welded tubing is produced in this country, but under cross-questioning by defense counsel he admitted that probably 15,000,000 feet of such tubing had been distributed in the last year.

Mrs. Mabel Lee, of Washington, a cousin of the slain woman, Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, said that she had accompanied Leroy to the funeral. He said nothing during the entire trip from Washington to Seat Pleasant, she added.

State Rests Its Case.

After having Sheriff Charles S. Early identify Prince Georges County as a part of Maryland the State rested.

Character witnesses placed on the stand during the afternoon by the defense included Russell Jones, of Cedar Hill, Md.; Mrs. Ada Brady, the defendant's mother; Joseph Trossback, a farmer of St. Mary's County; Hamilton Trossback, Joseph's son; Samuel B. Cheney, of Mitchellsville; Irvin L. Carrick, of Prince Georges County; J. Frank Thompson, of Prince Georges County; Isaac Cheney, of Mitchellsville; Edwin Gasch, of Bladensburg; John B. Lynch, of Washington, and Lester C. Pate, president of the garage where the defendant worked.

Mrs. J. Frank Thompson fainted on the stand while answering routine questions and was removed from the room. Herbert A. Frye, a Washington policeman, was disqualified as a character witness upon defense objections.

SOCIAL SEEKERS ASSAILED IN SPEECH BY ENVOY DAWES

States I met them at Westminster Hall, where they were assembled at the invitation of the British government that, to me, was the proudest hour of my sojourn here.

"There I presented the best representatives of my people to those who represented his majesty the king, British legion and British people—most of them likewise personally bereaved—and they met with that emotion and affection which a common understanding, a common suffering and a common blood alone make possible.

"As American Ambassador I come frequently into contact with certain traveled Britons and Americans who are continual purveyors of the trivial and the irritating in international relationship. They do not seem to have sensed the inevitable consequence of an existing tie of blood upon the permanent and fundamental attitude of the two peoples.

"The history of this portion of my people up to 300 years ago is the history of the British people, their traditions are the traditions of the British people; and through the last 300 years as well, they have preserved the British traditions of free government, of minority and individual rights, of law and order and of liberty under the law.

"It is well for the world that this tie exists, for in the joint hands of these two peoples rests the ark of the covenant of human freedom."

London, June (Friday) (A.P.).—Under the caption "Americans Who Are Not Representative," the Daily Mail today gave front page prominence to the speech of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes at Cambridge, which the paper interpreted as rebuking Americans who seek social preference.

Declaring that in the United States more than in Great Britain mothers and daughters vie with mothers and daughters to be presented at the British court, the paper says:

"In view of this fact, much significance attaches to the rebuke administered by the Ambassador."

Resignation of Dawes Reported as Imminent

London, June 5 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Charles Gates Dawes, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, is planning to resign his diplomatic post here in the near future, reliable information reaching the New York World News Service tonight indicates.

The American Ambassador, who is sailing for New York aboard the Aquitania Saturday, is "officially" going home on leave. Whether his resignation will be announced while he is in the United States or whether the announcement will be postponed until he returns to London to take formal leave of King George V, has not as yet been ascertained. But the information regarding the future personal plans of Ambassador Dawes makes it appear certain that his official tenure here is shortly coming to a close.

West Virginian Hurt In Sawmill Explosion

Special to The Washington Post.

Franklin, W. Va., June 5.—Russell Smith, of Riverton, near here, was seriously injured Wednesday when the boiler of a traction engine used in connection with the sawmill of his father, I. C. Smith, exploded. A younger brother, Ralph, was less seriously injured in the same accident. The sawmill was being operated on the farm of Snowden Sites, below Mouth of Seneca. At the time of the explosion Russell Smith, fireman, was standing on the engine platform and the younger brother nearby.

Russell was thrown into the air and found in a badly mangled condition some 25 feet away, with one eye probably blinded, head and body badly bruised and some bones broken. He was taken to a Harrisonburg, Va., hospital.

Brewster, in Cell, Left to Himself

Soldier, Accused of Baker Girl's Death, Paces in Nervous Way.

Private Howard L. Brewster spent his first 24 hours in the Arlington County Jail quietly, officials investigating the murder of Mary Baker of which the soldier has been formally accused, leaving him alone yesterday to his own thoughts.

The soldier, still in Army uniform, smoked incessantly as he paced his cell. At times he walked down the corridor of the second floor tier of cells, nodding to fellow prisoners but refusing to converse with them. Brewster, who was removed to the jail from the Army barracks Wednesday, slept well and awoke early yesterday. He ate the prison fare with apparent relish.

Commonwealth's Attorney William Gloth said last night he may question the prisoner today to check various details of soldier's confession of having slain the Baker girl. Brewster recanted the confession, but several significant points in his statement concerning the murder caused the police to take him into custody.

Shenandoha College Commencement Held

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 5.—Expressing full faith in the youth of today, Dr. James W. Wright, pastor of the Harrisonburg United Brethren Church, in the fifty-fifth annual commencement address today at Shenandoah College, told the 45 graduates that they must struggle to meet changing conditions. He added that the present crime wave is not criminal; it is from a confused head rather than a bad heart.

President A. L. Maiden, in awarding the diplomas, participated in his last commencement exercises at Shenandoah College, he having resigned after four years of service. Dr. Vernon L. Phillips, of Connecticut, an alumnus, assumes the president's post next fall. Claude Warren, star full back at Davis and Elkins College for the past four years and a stellar athlete at Shenandoah College some years ago, has been appointed athletic director at the Dayton institution.

PAY BILL CONFERENCE UP TO HOUSE VOTE

son yesterday afternoon, and it was after this that Mr. Tilson promised action on the resolution to send the pay bill to confergence.

Tilson Sees Compromise.

Mr. Tilson said that Mr. Zihlman and Mr. McLeod showed a disposition to work out some sort of an agreement that would be satisfactory to all concerned. Hence, he said, he was confident that in the end some kind of a pay bill would be enacted.

From what Mr. Tilson said, he now is seeking to do one of two things—persuade the men who will be the House conferees to go into conference and insist on the House or Simmons amendments or bring about still another compromise on hte Simmons amendments.

Mr. Zihlman and Mr. McLeod made it very clear yesterday that they will not go into the conference bound to any set course of action. They might be willing to accept one o rtwo of the Simmons amendments, however, if to accept them meant the saving of the bill.

Mr. Simmons Firm.

To talk of another compromise Mr. Simmons turns a deaf ear. The only bill he will support, he says, is the bill that was passed by the House. Any other, he asserts, he will oppose to the very end.

So much for the situation on the House side of the Capitol. What about the Senate? What about the Senate conferees? Certainly Chairman Capper of the Senate Distrfct committee would not accept the House bill as it now stands, and any attempt by the House conferees to get him to accept it would be foolish. Whether he would accept a modified House bill is a question the answer to which mut await the actual conference.

The truth of the matter is that the pay bill is in very, very bad shape.

Ohio River Low, Traffic Stopped.

Portsmouth, Ohio, June 5 (A.P.).—Boat traffic on the Ohio River between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati was abandoned temporarily today when water dropped so low as to make navigation impossible. Lack of rainfall during the past several weeks was blamed for the low stage.

Marker Unveiled At Historic Oak

Charlottesville Places Tablet to Memorialize Tarleton's Raid.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., June 5.—Col. Bryan Conrad, of Winchester, Va., was the principal speaker this afternoon at exercises in connection with the unveiling of a marker at the "Historic Oak," on East High street, where, according to tradition, Col. Banastre Tarleton, British officer, rested when he made a raid on Charlottesville in an attempt to capture Thomas Jefferson, then Governor of Virginia, and members of the Legislature.

The British raid was foiled by the quick dash of Capt. Jack Jouett, who reached Monticello from his home in Louisa in time to notify Jefferson of the approach of the British troops.

Mrs. Bruce Reynolds, regent of the Jack Jouett Chapter, presided at the exercises, held on the 149th anniversary of Jouett's historic ride. Following a prayer and salute to the flag, the tablet was unveiled by Mrs. J. Cooke Grayson, chaplain of the chapter, and Harry Lowe, director of the Municipal Band, played "The Star-Spangled Banner." The address of welcome was by J. Callan Brooks, of the Albemarle bar, who also presented Col. Conrad.

Hagerstown Veteran Takes Life With Pistol

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., June 5.—Jason Lawrence, 37, World War veteran, committed suicide by shooting himself. His body was found in a field in the western outskirts of the city this morning. A revolver was found grasped in his hand. A note also was found addressed to a girl, in which he told her to take care of everything he had and bid her goodby. It is believed that Lawrence shot himself late last night, as persons living in the vicinity heard a shot about 10:30 o'clock.

He was employed by a local contractor. A paper found in his pocket showed he enlisted July 22, 1918, at Ottumwa, Iowa. He apparently was in good spirits yesterday and no reason can be assigned for his act.

NEW LOCKS PLACED ON SENATORS' DOORS

(Democrat), of Tennessee, got up in the Senate and made a speech about it. He said his office had been turned inside out and when he sat down two others reported nocturnal visits. They were Senators Smoot (Republican), of Utah, and Brock (Democrat), of Tennessee.

A little later, Senator Johnson (Republican), of California, made a similar complaint. His office is in the Capitol itself, and therefore does not rate a new lock. A resolution was adopted recently, however, providing for a new guard to patrol the corridor in which his office is located.

The locks in the Senate Office Building, according to Charles E. Alden, the custodian, will cost $1,080, which is about what it would cost to hire one additional policeman.

With each new lock comes a set of new keys. These have been turned over to those persons whom the various senators have certified to Mr. Alden. Thus, if any duplicates appear, the senators will have only themselves to blame.

The locks which have just been removed were more than twenty years old, and the keys that went with them, no doubt, had been duplicated hundreds of times.

Now that the building has been made burglar proof, it only remains to remove the dial telephones and the peace of mind of the senators will be complete.

David Barry, the sergeant at arms, said yesterday that the telephone company had notified him that the task of removing these phones would soon be started. The resolution asking for their removal specified that they should be gone in 30 days, and that a little over two weeks ago.

403 ARE GRADUATED BY NAVAL ACADEMY

Secretary Adams Speaker at Colorful Exercises in Dahlgren Hall.

MONTH'S LEAVE BEGINS

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., June 5.—"The spirit of the service depends upon your receiving justice and it must be rather a stern sort of justice because you have been called to serve your country," Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, told 403 graduates of the Naval Academy in an address at commencement ceremonies held in Dahlgren Hall this morning in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends from every State in the Union.

"You go out on your own," said Secretary Adams, "and that, whereas, you have been under the control of officers to whom you could look for direction, you must now learn to exercise control over others."

Secretary Adams was the principal speaker. Rear Admiral Samuel S. Robison, superintendent of the Academy, presided, and also addressed the class. More than a score of the graduates who received their diplomas and a hearty handshake from the Naval Secretary, are residents of Washington or nearby points of Virginia and Maryland.

Eighteen District Graduates.

Eighteen young men of the District of Columbia, ten of Maryland and six of Virginia were among the graduates. The District of Columbia men are Kelvin Lightfoot Nutting, George Benedict Chafee, John Aristides Moreno, Frank Ingersoll Winant, Edward Seabury Carmick, Paul Prichard Blackburn, jr., Charles Bowling Martell, David Lee Wheichel, Harry Smith, Thomas Worth Marshall, jr., Richard Coulter Drum Hunt, jr., James Alvin Adkins, Robert Rutherford Craighill, James White Davis, William Clayton Butler, Frank Miller, William Adger Moffett, and Alexander Cammel Cameron Wadsworth.

The Virginia men are Walter B. Phillips, William Overton Snead, Robert Smith Trower 3d, William Francis Epperly, Robert Dixie Sutton, and George Cameron Seay.

41 Allowed to Resign.

Revision of the list of the class shows that with the receipt of diplomas, 331 were commissioned in the regular line of the Navy; twenty-seven voluntarily resigned by permission of the Navy Department; fourteen other resignations were accepted because of physical disqualifications; 28 chose to accept commissions as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, and three as ensigns in the Navy Supply Corps.

All of the graduates will now avail themselves of a month's leave before reporting for regular duty. Most of them will go to sea on ships of the fleet, but approximately 150 have signified their intention of taking the advanced course in aviation and will be assigned to the Naval Air Station at Pensacola, Fla.

On the official dais at the exercises were a number of distinguished guests, including Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland; Rear Admiral William V. Pratt, commander of the United States fleet, and other high ranking officers from official Washington circles.

Address by Robison.

The exercises opened with a brief invocation by Commander Frank H. Lash, Academy Chaplain, who asked that the Holy Spirit go with the graduates into the service, enabling them to live up to the responsibilities they would be called upon to face. Before presenting Secretary Adams to the audience, Supt. Robison delivered a farewell address to the graduates. He reminded them that they are picked men, picked for a definite purpose, not to compete with other men of or in the United States.

"In your competitors," he said, "will be the personnel of other navies. You will deserve the confidence and trust reposed in you by your own people if you cultivate the good will of foreign peoples and at the same time so impress them as to command their respect as able, resourceful, highly skilled naval officers, and as powerful potential antagonists. With such a reputation you will add greatly to the weight of your Government's voice in world affairs and thus be influential in maintaining peace."

When Secretary Adams ended his address, the distribution of diplomas was begun. Andrew McBurney Jackson, jr., of Louisiana, honor man of the class, was the first to receive his diploma. The sheepskins were handed to the graduates by Secretary Adams, who shook hands with each man of the class.

There was a frantic rush to secure caps as souvenirs as the graduates sent their old hats spinning to the ceiling of the vast hall.

Early tomorrow morning the new first and third class of Midshipmen will embark on three warships for the summer practice cruise to European waters.

Two of the graduates, D. W. Gladney, jr., of Arkansas, and P. L. Devos, of Arizona, distinguished themselves by winning Rhodes scholarships to Oxford University. They will sail for England shortly.

MIDSHIPMEN TOSSING CAPS ON GRADUATING

Henry Miller Service.

Following the awarding of the last diploma at the graduation of midshipmen at the Naval Academy at Annapolis yesterday, hundreds of caps were tossed into the air, a signal that academy days are over and the graduates are officers in the Navy.

Dr. Hoffman Hero In Blaze at Prison

Doctor-Convict Saves Sick in Lorton Hospital; Policeman Aids.

Dr. Louis W. Hoffman, who was sentenced to prison in the killing of a young woman in an illegal operation, and Edward M. Taylor, former District policeman, were the heroes of a fire in the temporary hospital of the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va., early Tuesday morning.

Hoffman and Taylor rushed into the blazing building and brought out patients too ill to save themselves. Hoffman ran through a wall of flame to reach one man he saved. The story of the fire and rescues was told yesterday by Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of District penal institutions. The fire was started accidentally by a prisoner named Frank Spears, who threw a match into inflammable disinfectant.

Spears' clothes caught fire and he raced from the building, where other prisoners beat out the flames. None attempted to escape, although there are no walls about the reformatory.

Hitt Dismisses Drinking Charges Against Man

Charges of driving while drunk against William H. Banks, colored, were dismissed yesterday in Police Court when the police who arrested the man failed to appear against him as witnesses.

Judge Isaac R. Hitt in dismissing the case entertained a motion of Defense Attorney John P. Mullen. The attorney pointed out that if the defense had not been ready to proceed the Government would have insisted on immediate trial and reserved the same privilege for his client.

RECTOR'S DAUGHTER FACES SANITY TEST

Woman Held in Richmond for Trying Again to Commit Suicide.

ATTEMPTED ACT HERE

Mrs. Louise Antoinette Brewster Ruggles, who made three unsuccessful attempts to end her life, twice in the District and once in Richmond, Va., faced a sanity hearing today before the latter authorities.

Mrs. Ruggles, who is the daughter of the Rev. George Brewster, of Fresno, Calif., made her third attempt in Richmond several weeks ago and, after receiving hospital treatment, was committed to the City Home there. When she announced yesterday that she planned to escape, she was placed in the jail, pending a sanity hearing.

The young woman made her first attempt here April 1, and her identity remained a mystery for several weeks, while she lay in Emergency Hospital recovering from the poison. Shortly after being released from the hospital she made a second attempt on May 17.

The woman then fled from an institution here on May 26, being found wandering in the streets of Alexandria, clad only in pajamas. Furnished with clothing, the girl then made her way to Richmond.

Richmond authorities have asked the father of the girl to take her back, but their efforts have been unavailing. The girl's mother, separated from her father, is said to be residing in Berkeley, Calif.

CONFEDERATES FLAY G. A. R. INVITATION

Veterans Resent Offer of Joint Parade With Southern Flag Omitted.

OFFICERS ARE NAMED

Biloxi, Miss., June 5 (A.P.).—The United Confederate Veterans, in fortieth reunion, today rejected unanimously the proposal that they meet in a joint gathering with the Veterans of the Army of the North.

They likewise adopted a resolution by Maj. Gen. John R. Kennedy, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., expressing their sentiments over the offer of the Grand Army of the Republic to march with the remnants of the Southern army provided the Confederate flag be omitted in the parade.

The resolution read as follows:

"When the association in time has passed away, we will place to the care and keeping of our daughters and sons our beloved Confederate flag, emblematic of all that is good and holy—that has never been polluted by the touch of German hirelings, Italian dagoes, European wharf rats or African slavery, but always raised for the purpose of the freedom, of liberty and love of our beautiful Southland.

"Such a meeting does not meet our approbation and no good can come of such a meeting."

Gen. L. W. Stephens, of Coushatta, La., commander of the Army of Tennessee, was elected commander in chief of the Confederate Veterans to succeed Gen. R. A. Sneed, of Oklahoma City, who did not offer for reelection.

Charles T. Norman, of Richmond, Va., was elected commander of the Sons of Confederate Veterans.

A special resolution was adopted by the veterans thanking President Hoover for sending the United States Marine Band to the reunion.

The veterans chose Montgomery, Ala., as their meeting place in 1931.

Among department commanders elected was Homer L. Atkinson, Petersburg, Va., elected commander of the Army of Northern Virginia Department, comprising South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland.

COSTLY TARIFF DELAY.

The tariff bill has again been sent back to conference, and it is planned that the conferees shall leisurely consider the new situation next Monday. Utterly useless delay in enacting the tariff bill is keeping the business world in suspense and holding back expenditures that would furnish work for hundreds of thousands of men. If the Senate could sum up all the business plans that are held in abeyance during the period of doubt over the tariff it would find itself guilty of contributing enormously to unemployment and distress.

The country is entitled to know the best and worst, without further delay. The people have been more than patient. Great enterprises have been waiting for the signal to go ahead. Prudent business men will not sign contracts running into the future when they can not be sure of prices. They do not willingly keep their industries idle and their employes waiting for work. Granting that the United States has been overbuilt, the year in which tariff doubt has cast a pall over enterprise has been sufficient to take up the slack to a great extent. Building activities would be resumed in many places if the tariff question were out of the way. Factories would renew operations, and many centers of unemployment would be relieved.

When the tariff has been disposed of the Senate will consider the river and harbor bill. Practically all States are interested in the passage of this bill. It will contribute to prosperity as soon as it becomes a law. But it can not be passed until the tariff bill has been enacted. Thus the delay in tariff legislation not only paralyzes business enterprise, but actually delays public expenditures which would directly relieve unemployment.

Politicians in the Senate are extracting every possible ounce of political advantage by obstructing the tariff bill. They think they can make political capital by denouncing the tariff. But they will be careful to see that it passes. Some Democrats who are most vociferous in denouncing the tariff will vote for it, and others who intend to vote against it are making sure that other votes will overcome their opposition. It is high time for politics to give way to the necessities of unemployed citizens. Nothing is to be gained by any senator in opposing the tariff bill at this stage. He knows that the bill will pass. He has said everything against it that could be said, and his obstruction now is opposition to the restoration of workingmen to their jobs.

In their political maneuvers in the Senate many senators seem to forget that the tariff question is more than political. It vitally affects the plans of thousands of business leaders. These leaders are Democrats, as well as Republicans. They can not have any sympathy with Democrats who hold back business recovery by indulging in belated attempts to squeeze some political advantage out of the tariff controversy. For the sake of the everyday citizen engaged in trying to make a living, the Senate should push the tariff bill to enactment.

BLOCKING NOMINATIONS.

Among senators of the old school there is amusement over the predicament in which Senator Brookhart finds himself in the matter of the nomination of his political enemy, Hanford MacNider, as Minister to Canada. The old rule of senatorial courtesy is still in existence, although badly frayed, and under that rule the Senate would be expected to reject the nomination of a presidential appointee who for any reason was unacceptable to a senator from the appointee's State. This rule has been ignored from time to time, the most notable case being that of William H. Robertson, nominated by President Garfield for collector of the Port of New York 49 years ago, against the opposition of Senators Conkling and Platt. Their protests failed to prevent his confirmation, whereupon Senator Conklin resigned and was promptly followed by his colleague.

That action on the part of the two senators from the Empire State changed the political history of the United States, for their efforts to obtain the indorsement of the Legislature and their own "vindication" through reelection to the Senate created a breach in the ranks of the Republican party which was not healed until long after Folger had been defeated for the governorship by Grover Cleveland and the latter elected to the Presidency. The party was divided into half-breeds and stalwarts. The half-breeds aided the Democrats in the defeat of Folger and the stalwarts retaliated by helping in the election of Cleveland against Blaine.

Senater Brookhart no doubt is familiar with this bit of history. His opposition to Hanford MacNider probably will be tempered with the realization that his reelection in 1932 will be more certain if he is supported by an undivided party.

DOUBTFUL DRY LEGISLATION.

The House has approved the four bills drafted to carry out recommendations made by the Law Enforcement Commission to bring about better enforcement of the prohibition laws. One allows defendants to waive jury trial in Federal courts; another permits prosecution on information instead of grand jury indictment; a third defines petty violations and prescribes for them maximum penalties of six months in jail or a fine of $500; and a fourth provides for summary prosecution of petty offenders befor United States commissioners. The most drastic of the bills is the one providing for prosecutions before United States commissioners, and the principal fight in the House was waged over this measure.

Constitutionally, citizens are entitled to trial by jury "in all criminal prosecutions." The constitutionality of defining certain offenses as "petty," so that they can be heard before commissioners, was challenged in the House and unquestionably will be tested in the Supreme Court in the event the bill should be enacted. With defendants in prohibition cases almost invariably demanding jury trials, the courts have become so hopelessly congested as to demand drastic ameliorative action. If it should be held constitutional to shunt the hearing of petty cases from the courts to commissioners, it may be that a practical answer to the problem of court congestion will have been provided. The bill that permits defendants to waive jury trial in Federal courts similarly may result in a modicum of relief from court congestion.

The four bills comprising the program for tightening up enforcement of the prohibition law were described by those opposed as calculated to afford "stereotyped justice in quantity production." With this characterization it is difficult to quarrel. But the prohibition laws are today being violated on a quantity production basis. It may be regretted, but it seems inevitable, that fire must be fought with fire.

The program approved by the House represents a radical departure from tradition. For this reason alone, it will be scrutinized in minute detail in the Senate. But if the program should be enacted it will, at least, answer the much-repeated complaint of the drys that enforcement has been handicapped because of the inadequacy of the enforcement machine. If, under such a program, it should be found impossible to enforce the prohibition laws, Congress can not be held responsible.

INDIA'S DEADLY STRUGGLE.

The imminence of the monsoon season in India with its torrential rains has led the nationalists to inaugurate the second phase of the "peaceful revolution." The monsoons will put an end to the salt raids. Disobedience will now be embodied in organized refusal to pay taxes.

The government in India has not succeeded in putting down the salt raiders. Although it is asserted in governmental quarters that the revolutionaries represent the minority and although it is contended that only minor disorders have occurred, the movements of military forces in India speak for themselves to the rest of the world. Infantrymen are on the march. Squadrons of aircraft are ready to pour down destruction on the countryside. Artillery units have been moved up into the hill districts where they can rain shells upon tribesmen. Thousands of nationalists are interned in concentration camps while their leaders languish in jails. All this has transpired as a direct result of scattered raids on the salt depots participated in by the comparatively infinitesimal part of the Indian population that is able to reach the depots.

Now comes the refusal to pay taxes. In every nook and corner of India sympathizers will be able to participate in the second and most potentially dangerous phase of the uprising. Revolutionary tendencies will be inflamed if the government should elect to pursue what seems to be the only possible course under the circumstances—the confiscation of property and the eviction of homeowners. Since large-scale military movements were precipitated by the salt raids, what will be the effect of the boycott against the tax collector? The measures that have been taken to deal with the situation, says Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, "will pass with the emergency." But the emergency seems to be progressing steadily to a deadly climax.

AN ENEMY OF HARD TIMES.

H. J. Heinz, founder of the famous "57 varieties" company, had a business maxim that he applied courageously when events warranted, and which helps to explain the dominant position the Heinz company occupies today. It was: "When hard times pinch, double your advertising."

The series of conferences called by President Hoover to cope with the economic depression brought invaluable results. An extensive public building program was agreed upon, labor pledged itself to continue on the job until the emergency had passed, and capital promised not to reduce wages. These steps combined to prevent a general depression; they kept the country at work. But one of the interesting developments in the semidepression has been that department stores have been crowded and their volume of sales has not been reduced to any considerable extent. Commodities of all kinds have continued to flow from warehouses into homes, and even the so-called luxury lines have not felt the extreme pinch. An explanation is found in a survey of advertising recently completed by the magazine Printers' Ink.

In April, 36 of the 50 largest cities showed a 3 per cent increase in newspaper national advertising lineage (excluding the automobile and financial classifications) over April of a year ago. In March the gain was 5 per cent over the corresponding month of 1929, although in February and January losses of 7 per cent and 2.8 per cent, respectively, were registered. National magazines, which showed a 2.5 per cent in dollar volume of advertising carried in January as compared with January of a year ago, registered, in February, a 3.1 per cent gain, in March a 3.3 per cent gain and in April and May gains of 3.8 and 6 per cent respectively. Radio broadcasting gained more than $2,500,000 in advertising revenues for the first four months of the year.

Business as a whole seems to have borrowed the maxim of H. J. Heinz to increase advertising appropriations in the face of threatened adversity. Since sales tend always to lag behind advertising, the full effect of the increases promises to register itself in the forthcoming buying season. Business this summer and fall should be better than ever.

THE PORTER BILL.

Representative Stephen G. Porter's one ambition in life is to prevent the use of narcotics. Under the terms of the law which transferred the enforcement of the prohibition act from the Treasury to the Department of Justice the machinery for the enforcement of the law against manufacture, sale and importation of narcotics was left up in the air, so to speak. To relieve what might possibly become an embarrassing situation Mr. Porter early in the present session introduced a bill to "create in the Treasury Department a bureau of narcotics" with a commissioner at its head, to be charged with the duty of enforcing the narcotic law. Mr. Porter worked hard with the committee on ways and means and succeeded in securing a favorable report on his bill. It was passed by the House without opposition, just two months ago. When it reached the Senate that body was in the throes of discussion of the tariff bill, and the finance committee, to which the Porter bill was referred, could give it no consideration.

But Mr. Porter is a popular man in both Senate and House and his serious illness is a matter of concern to his colleagues. This fact may have had something to do with the action of the finance committee of the Senate. In any event the Porter bill has been reported to the Senate with some amendments which are designed only to strengthen the antinarcotic law.

Ordinarily at so late a day in the session, when every one is anxious to get away, it would be very difficult to secure the consent of the "steering committee" to place on its program a piece of legislation that is not of primary importance. However, the bill to create a bureau of narcotics in the Treasury Department is slated for passage in the Senate as part of the legislative program.

The enactment of the Porter bill may have a very beneficial effect upon the health of the author of the measure. In any event there is no doubt that in deciding to act upon the bill the Senate committee was actuated, in a measure at least, by the desire to comfort Representative Porter. It is a high compliment to him, as well as being a step forward in legislation designed to protect the public.

BISHOP CANNON'S CASE

By ROBERT L. OWEN,
Former United States Senator.

The Supreme Court has held that the pertinency of a question by a Senate committee is a judicial question and only ascertainable by a court of competent jurisdiction. The committee is not competent under this decision to determine as a judicial body either the pertinency or the constitutionality of its questions and neither is Bishop Cannon.

For the committee to attempt to coerce him to answer questions whose constitutionality or pertinency he challenges by a threat of a criminal proceeding violates the principle laid down by Justice Lamar in Cotting vs. K. C. Stock Yards, 188 U. S. 79, that a threat so great as to deter a citizen from asserting his rights was "tantamount to a denial of the equal protection of the law."

Congress itself, in the acts establishing the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Patent Office, Railroad Labor Board, Tariff Commission, Federal Power Commission, International Joint Commission, Arbitration Railroad Labor Disputes and China Trade act required such boards and commissions to submit to the courts such questions before penalties were imposed on the citizen for refusing to answer. (Sec. 225 U. S. 651).

Section 102, under which the lobby committee is acting, has not such safeguards, and in the Sinclair case over half the questions asked were thrown out of court. Only one out of ten was actually sustained by the Supreme Court and as to that one question the court held that its pertinency was a judicial question (not legislative).

Obviously Bishop Cannon has a constitutional right to have the pertinency and constitutionality of the question judicially determined before he should be subjected to prosecution for withholding his answer. If this be not true no citizen is safe in his constitutional rights against inquisitorial unconstitutional questions by a hostile or inconsiderate committee.

This question is far more important than it appears and should be analyzed by the press and the public.

Shall men be denied the right to assert their constitutional rights by threats and in violation of the just liberty of the citizen?

SWAT THAT FLY NOW!

Medical entomology, in spite of its progress during the last few decades, is an unexploited field, in the opinion of Dr. L. W. Howard. There are hundreds of insect species, closely allied to species known to carry disease, that should be studied. These, says Nature Magazine, include about 550 types of mosquitoes in the Americas alone.

The entomologists and doctors exposed the house fly as the mechanical carrier of several diseases and have done much to safeguard the world against this criminal of the insect world. Dr. Howard was a leader in the campaign against it, publishing many bulletins and magazine articles, beginning in 1896 and culminating in his book, "The House Fly—Disease Carrier," which appeared in 1911 and has since been translated into many languages.

Extensive studies have been made of mosquitoes, too, but, says Dr. Howard, we do not know all about them and further work is necessary. Typhus, malaria, yellow fever, sleeping sickness and Rocky Mountain fever are just a few of the maladies insects visit upon mankind.

JUST FOLKS

MISTRESS AND SERVANT.

They're very rich, so I am told.
And being poisoned by their gold;
In anger often they condemn
The timid girl who works for them.

She waits upon them, day by day,
And hears whatever they may say;
But while she serves them food and drinks
She makes no sign of what she thinks.

They've trained her well to mind her place
And keep an unresponsive face;
For anything she sees or hears
There must be neither smiles nor tears.

No thought from them she's ever had
Save is the service good or bad;
Being a servant, she's compelled
Beneath their notice to be held.

They think her common, but I fear
They'd startled be if they could hear
The girl they scornfully condemn
With equal scorn discussing them.

They'd be surprised to know that she
Above them holds herself to be,
And thinks her manners better far
Than those of her employers are.

"I Hate Bloodshed," Said the Shepherd, "So I Shall Muzzle My Dogs When the Wolves Appear."

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN the game of bridge there comes a time when the player holds cards so profitable in themselves that he feels free to bid more than he can make, knowing that his profit will be greater than his adversary's even if he falls short of his bid.

Similar conditions prompt nations to make war.

Given a grievance and the reasonable hope of gaining more than it has to lose, any nation or group of nations will attack its neighbors.

That is history, and history is an analysis of human nature.

To disregard it is childish folly.

Now observe the cards dealt by Fate.

America is enormously rich; she is capturing the markets of the world; she has built a tariff wall to deprive other nations of the world's richest market.

Other nations are desperately poor; they envy America; they resent America's invasion of foreign markets and selfish protection of her own; they owe America a debt of billions that war would cancel; in the event of war they could seize many more billions of American property now within their borders.

I do not mean to say that war is inevitable or even probable, but only that the situation contains the threat of war.

America is a fat bird roosting low, without adaquate protection.

This is not a plea for a larger navy or more airplanes and submarines or a bigger army, but a plea for the decent protection of those poor creatures commonly called cannon fodder.

In the first great battle between Russia and Germany in 1914, a Russian army of a quarter of a million brave men was annihilated—not by superior fighting men, but because of the incompetence of Russian officers who marched them, exhausted and hungry, into a slaughter pen.

When America made war against Spain, thousands of patriots were herded in pestilential camps and permitted to die like vermin in a trap.

In that war, as in every other except the last, America lost more men by disease than were slain by the enemy.

In the last war, doughboys were driven forward to be slaughtered six hours after their superiors knew the war was over; many were caught in their own barrage; and at home the wastefulness of incompetent men burdened the country with billions of debt.

Since war must come, it is a crime against the common man not to train him for it and to train leaders he can trust.

In the Civil War, Illinois troops refused to march until they were given competent officers.

If it is the duty of every man to fight for his country, it is his right to demand that his country shall give him every possible advantage in the fight.

It is murder to drive untrained and inadequately armed men into battle while official incompetents tardily prepare for national defense.

THE ONCE OVER

GOLF AND GUNMEN.

In Chicago gunmen now employ "caddies." The other day the police found a gangster carrying a shotgun concealed in a golf bag. If the gunmen shoot no better than the average golfer this may mean an end of the crime wave.

Mere association with a golf bag means indecision and inaccuracy.

"What's the next shot?" a gunman will inquire as he "plays" a difficult and unfamiliar course.

"There he is" the crime caddy will say, pointing to the next victim.

"I wonder if I should use my No. 5 or No. 6 for this distance?"

"The No. 6 should be okay, boss."

"It looks to me a little far for a No. 6," the gunman will mutter, irresolutely.

"You can reach him all right," the caddy will insist.

"I had a shot just like this yesterday and I was too short."

"Well, if you feel more confident with a No. 5 use it, but a good player would do it with a 6," the caddy will still insist.

The gunman will, of course, through his indecision, miss the shot and throw down his gun with a good golf oath and a cry of "What did I do?"

"You lifted your head," the caddy will say. "And anyhow, I told you to use a No. 6."

POSSIBLE RULES.

1. A singleton gunman shall have no rights on any course and shall allow all twosomes and foursomes to go through whenever signaled.

2. In twosomes and foursomes the gunman farthest from the target in his shot shall be the first to shoot again.

3. Citizens shall be shot as they lie, and may not be teed up on fairways.

4. When a gunman misses a victim he shall take a penalty of one stroke.

5. In a case where a gunman shoots at one man and hits an innocent bystander the gunman shall lose distance only.

6. When a victim is knocked behind a fence, tree, rock or other obstacle by a first shot, his assailant may move him a gun's length away before playing him again.

7. Citizens who drop in roadways may be tossed back onto the fairway over either shoulder, and shooting resumed.

8. Playing victims out of traps with machine guns is forbidden.

9. Any citizen taking refuge behind a stone wall, police officer or district attorney shall constitute an unplayable lie.

10. The purchasing of cartridges, new or used, from caddies is forbidden.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Shall a Man Be Free Enough in Virginia to Paint His House on Sunday?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please allow me to congratulate you on publishing Mr. Barbee's article in the magazine section of The Sunday Post, on blue laws, in which he referred to my arrest here in Clarendon for painting my house on Sunday.

These blue laws in Arlington County are flagrantly disregarded, and occasionally when enforced, the motive can be traced to politics or religious prejudice. So when I was arrested for painting my house on Sunday, I hesitated about obtaining local counsel, because I did not know their affiliations. Having read in the newspapers of the National Association opposed to Blue Laws, I concluded to call on them for legal aid.

Inside of an hour they had three attorneys in conference on my case.

This is probably the small organization mentioned in Mr. Barbee's article, as the Small Anti-Blue Law Society. They may be small, but they seem to be very much on the job when it comes to action on blue laws.

Mr. Barbee said that the honor of the Old Dominion was at stake in this case.

When I glance over the history of Virginia and find such immortal Americans as George Washington, Thomas Jefferson and Patrick Henry, all stanch pioneer defenders of that truly American gospel of the absolute divorce of church and state and of the principle that "a man's home is his castle," and when I observe that Virginia has for the past 20 years or more suffered from a distinct disease known as "Bishop Cannonism," and when I recall that in last fall's State election, Virginia showed definite determination to rid herself of this affliction, and that these fanatices are in a state of frenzy, as indicated by the behavior of their high-priest before the Senate lobby inquiry committee on Capitol Hill, I agree that the honor of the Old Dominion is at stake in this case.

Discreet Censorship by Librarians Would Help, Says Correspondent Who Commends Dr. Bowerman.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent letter of Public Librarian Bowerman to The Post, in which he speaks of the circulation policy of the Public Library, pleased me very much. The fact that the fiction called for has decreased from 80 per cent to 50 per cent is encouraging.

Not that I am opposed to fiction, provided it is high-class. At least a little fiction is necessary to round out one's education. But in giving preference to the circulation of books of solid learning I think the library is carrying out its proper purpose.

So far as the selection of light reading is concerned, I do hope that Dr. Bowerman's assistants will be careful not to list books which may be morally detrimental to young readers. By this I do not mean stories like "The Scarlet Letter," which deal with human problems from the viewpoint of Christian civilization.

I refer to such as are obviously inspired by a flair for the decadent. Unfortunately there are some of this class shelved in our library and its branches, and it would please me very much if a quiet censorship were put in force by those who have the selection of books in charge.

In regard not only to the mental but to the moral improvement of the masses the responsibility of librarians is very great. To most of those who habitually make use of public libraries there is something authoritative in anything in the shape of a book and I do not think there are many mothers who will indorse the absurd idea that it will strengthen the moral fiber of our boys and girls to read the fiction of modernist writers whose gloomy view of life is colored by vulgar indecency.

Tribute to Frederick Ernest Farrington as a Man and Educator.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I can not let this opportunity pass without a word of tribute to that knightly soldier, my friend, Frederick Ernest Farrington—great educator, useful citizen, true friend; his integrity, his wise judgment, his generous heart, his abounding energy, ever active in the service of others, especially of those who came under his educative influence; his lofty spirit and winning manner, simple, sweet and genial. The benevolence of his heart shone out in his engaging smile, which gained for him a friend in every new acquaintance.

He passed on from a beautiful and beneficent life, rich in effective performance here in our midst, to even greater usefulness and effectiveness in the next stage in The Great Adventure.

Until Circles Are Abolished Motorists Should Circle Away From Them.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Citizens Hit Crush at Thomas Circle," says a Post headline. It refers to a protest by the Manor Park Citizens Association about traffic conditions there.

Some time ago a Post correspondent suggested that where park circles interfere with traffic they should be done away with. I agree with him, and I expect that before many months go by steps will be taken with that end in view.

In the meantime I would suggest that automobilists affected do a little detouring to relieve the situation.

Dr. Prestes To Be Feted In Capital

Brazil President-Elect Will Be Dinner Guest of Hoovers.

By JEAN ELIOT.

ARRIVING in Washington on Wednesday evening, June 11, Dr. Julio Prestes, President-elect of Brazil, will be the guest of the Nation. However, the official program of entertainment in his honor will not begin until next day, when Dr. Prestes will be received by President Hoover at the White House, the President calling upon the distinguished visitor immediately afterward at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer in Crescent place, which has been placed at the disposal of the Government to be used as Dr. Prestes' temporary home. That evening—Thursday—the President and Mrs. Hoover will give a dinner at the White House in honor of the President-elect of Brazil.

This will be the climax of a busy day, for following his exchange of calls with the President, Dr. Prestes will attend a luncheon for members of Washington's Brazilian colony to be given by the Brazilian Ambassador, Senhor S. Gurgel do Amaral, at the embassy. In the afternoon the president-elect will visit Mount Vernon and Arlington to place wreaths on the tomb of George Washington and the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The brilliant official dinner which Senhor do Amaral will give "on the occasion of the visit of the president-elect of Brazil and in honor of the President of the United States and Mrs. Hoover" will be held on Saturday, June 14, at the Pan American Union and will be the last event on his program, as he will leave next day for New York. The Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, will entertain at dinner for Dr. Prestes on the evening of Friday, June 13, and on that day there will be a luncheon given in his honor by the governing board of the Pan American Union, which will follow a special session of the board.

The president-elect will visit the Senate on Friday morning and will call upon Vice President Curtis, who will immediately return the call. On the evening after his arrival in town, Dr. Prestes will dine privately at the Meyer residence. This imposing mansion in Crescent place, which has the entire panorama of Washington at its feet, was long the home of the late Mr. Henry White. On offering the house to the Government for the entertainment of the president-elect of Brazil, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer left Washington and they are now at their country home at Mount Kisco, N. Y.

A parade and official ceremonies of welcome will mark the arrival of Dr. Prestes in New York next Wednesday. He will then remain but a few hours in the metropolis, but he will return for a few days after he leaves Washington. He will visit the Military Academy at West Point on June 16 and on June 18 will go to Philadelphia to receive an LL. D. degree from the University of Pennsylvania. That evening he will sail for home.

While in New York Dr. Prestes will attend a banquet to be given jointly by the Pan American Society, the American-Brazilian Association and a committee of bankers at the Commodore Hotel on June 17. Other evenings of his visit have been left free in order that he may have time to entertain—or be entertained—privately or to go to the play, the president-elect being much interested in the theater.

First Lady Leaves For Rapidan Camp.

Mrs. Hoover left Washington yesterday afternoon by motor for the President's camp on the Rapidan, where she will complete her convalescence from a period of invalidism resulting from injuries to her back. Capt. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, has recommended the seclusion of the Virginia camp as likely to prove beneficial. If his engagements permit, President Hoover will probably spend the week-end in camp.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford, who were guests at the White House over night, left town yesterday.

The Ambassador of Cuba, Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, has returned from Florida, where the honorary degree of doctor of law was conferred upon him by the University of Florida at Gainesville. Senora de Ferrara also has returned to Washington from a brief visit in New York and Boston. They will remain in town until the middle of June, when they leave for New York and will sail for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Corcoran Adkins have issued invitations for the wedding reception of their daughter, Miss Jessie Adkins, whose marriage to Mr. Sidney Lovett Eaton will take place on Tuesday, June 24. The reception will be at the home of the bride's parents at 1424 Sixteenth street, at 4 o'clock.

Mr. Eaton and his bride will be at home after October 1, at 332 Ostrom avenue, Syracuse, N. Y.

The chief of staff, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, will return to Washington Sunday from Georgia, where he went to dedicate a monument.

Mr. Thompson At Festivities In Annapolis

Houseboat Is Scene of Gayety During June Week.

Convalescent from an illness which caused his friends grave anxiety, Col. Robert M. Thompson is taking part in the activities of graduation time at the Naval Academy. A member of the Naval Academy class of '68, Col. Thompson has always taken a keen interest in everything connected with the Navy school and for years and years he has rarely missed being in Annapolis through June week.

This time Col. Thompson has been living aboard his houseboat, the Everglades, and has done a lot of entertaining for the midshipmen and the pretty girls who are in Annapolis for commencement.

Col. Thompson is the donor of two awards made annually to members of the graduating class—a navigating sextant presented for the greatest proficiency in practical and theoretical navigation, and the Thompson Trophy Cup on which is inscribed the name of the midshipman who has done the most in the preceding year to promote athletics.

Presumably the Everglades will go from Annapolis to Southampton, where Col. Thompson has a summer home. The colonel was in Washington for several weeks in the spring and at that time his houseboat was anchored off the Engineers' Wharf. His daughter, Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, occasionally had guests aboard the craft, but because of Col. Thompson's illness there was less entertaining on the Everglades than on her previous visits to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Love are spending a few days at Virginia Beach, Va.

Comdr. and Mrs. Keleher To Reside in Capital.

Commander T. J. Keleher, U. S. N., and Mrs. Keleher have taken an apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel. Commander Keleher, who has been on duty in Cuba, has been ordered to the Bureau of Engineering at the Navy Department. Mrs. Keleher recently returned from Europe, where she has been for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pierson, of Washington, are visiting at the Grove Park Inn at Asheville, N. C.

As a farewell hospitality to Dr. Enrique Olaya, President-elect of Colombia, his former colleagues of the governing board of the Pan-American Union gave a luncheon in his honor yesterday. The fete was held in the Hall of Flags and Heroes of the Pan-American Union Building, and was preceded by a special meeting of the board, at which addresses were made by the chairman, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, and the vice chairman, Senor Don Manuel Tellez, Ambassador of Mexico.

Ambassador Tellez and Secretary Stimson were guests at the luncheon. Others present were Senor S. WORK ON BRIDGE

With increased experience, Contract players have drifted away from the type of bidding known as "Ace showing." When Contract was in its swaddling clothes, there were many who thought that the most important feature of the contracting was the showing of Aces by one partner to another; today very few would consider Ace-showing of much importance, and there are some who assert that such bids are liabilities rather than assets. They say that even when bidding to show an Ace does not cost anything by preventing the announcement of a long suit, it gives the opponents more valuable information than the partner receives by showing them which suit to lead.

Of course, this is not so apt to happen when the Ace-showing does not extend beyond one suit; but many an otherwise sure slam has been lost because Aces have been shown in two or three suits and the suit that the leader should open thus has been clearly marked. My own opinion is that the hands that work well when bid by Ace-showers usually would work out equally well under any other sound system.

The theory of the Ace-showers is that after the two partners have experienced a "meeting of the minds" or have "established a playing suit" ("set" it is called by some), declarations in other suits should announce only that the Ace of that suit is held—or perhaps the King if the Ace has been announced previously. A suit usually is "set" under this system when both partners have made a bid in it, or one has started with a bid of three or higher.

It is evident that adopting this practice must shut out many opportunities to show a long suit, and make it practically impossible to give the partner a choice between two suits. For example: With three Hearts bid by South, and North holding a singleton Heart and the Ace-King-Queen and two or more Spades, North would much prefer that his bid of three Spades should be taken as a legitimate Spade bid rather than as merely announcing the Ace of Spades. Again: If South started by bidding one Spade and North jumped, South might want to overcall with Hearts and show a two-suiter; but under the Ace-showing system his Heart bid would have no such meaning.

Modern practice is either to do away entirely with Ace-showing or limit it to cases in which both partners know that the Ace-showing bid is made with slam intent. For example, an original bid of five Hearts from a love score or three Hearts with a score of 60, is a slam invitation and announces a sure game at the declaration named. Then there is no need to show a possible game in any other declaration, but showing an Ace in some other suit might be more informatory than a jump of partner's suit.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"GEMINI."

IF June 6 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 4:30 a. m. to 6 a. m., from 11 a. m. to noon and from 7 p. m. to 8:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:30 a. m. to 9:30 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The influences on this date will breed uncertainty and a feeling of insecurity will be felt generally. Worries within the home of a personal nature and possible estrangements. Business prosperity and things of national interest brought to notice.

The child born on this June 6 will be irritable and highly strung, somewhat precocious and self-willed. It should not be encouraged to show off and should be treated in a matter-of-fact way, 'less it becomes spoiled and impertinent. It will ask questions with avidity and can not be put off.

It may be said that you have an interesting character, a charming personality and a strong individuality. Because you dare to be different indicates that you are both strong and independent. There is a premium in the world for individuality, and it is self-advertising. Your mannerisms are your own and, though you may travel far and near, you will never lose them. You are too busy in the expression of self to have time to copy others, and probably as a mimic you would be a flat failure.

There is something very clean and whole-souled about you. Your ideals are of the highest, but they are not on a pedestal, however, you try to live up to them. You display good fellowship in all your doings with others, and as a rule you seldom clash with any one. The positiveness of your nature is offset by your courtesy, tact and thoughtfulness. You are interested in people, and you enjoy watching and studying people off their guard, although you do not judge your victims.

You are destined to be a person of some note in your sphere, although your head will never become turned through the plaudits of the crowd. You will benefit through your friends, although you are not seeking "pulls." You are a practical worker and you will accomplish much.

Successful people born June 6:
Nathan Hale, Revolutionary soldier.
Samuel P. Newman, clergyman, educator and author.
Daniel Beach, educator, promoter of education in Rhode Island.
Catherine A. Warfield, poet and author.
Henry Mosler, artist.
Bruno Oscar Klein, composer and pianist.

Dare Interprets the MODE

The daintiest dinner dresses are chiffon and lace combined. And this bright blue one has a braided belt. (Courtesy of Lucile, Paris.)

Paris, June 5.

I JUST attended another opening at the famous old house of Lucile and was struck anew by the charm and loviness and wearableness of their models.

What a far cry they are from the cake-frosting and Christmas tree concoctions that used to be the specialty of this house years ago! I fear that too few people realize that this type of garment was shown, and so very well shown, by this famous house because it expressed the styles of the day, rather than because it expressed their particular tastes in women's garments.

I assure you that just as they so well expressed those styles, so do they express the styles of today. Charm and discretion are their keynote, seemingly simple things, yet intricately lovely upon close inspection; as for instance the gunmetal tulle dress I already told you about with its rows upon millyun of rows of fine white braid all put on by hand.

And how about the blue lace dress that I have illustrated for you today, with its odd girdle made of twisted rolls of blue chiffon falling through a strass buckle and flaring out to form a part of the skirt? The chiffon is matched on the other side of the skirt, and the whole dress done in the typical Lucile manner as to finishing—and charm.

• • • •

And have you ever lived until you've owned a Lucile lounging pajama? The answer is no, and if you're inclined not to believe my extravagance you just should see one!

• • • •

Paris' latest gadget craze has to do with canvas, like samplers are made of, and new and different designs—and when you get the canvas and the designs and the colored wool or raffia all assembled, the result will be collars and cuffs and hats and scarfs 'n everything nice!

Of course the idea is to make them yourself from the Dah-ray directions in this week's illustrated leaflet. Send her your stamped, self-addressed envelope in care of the Dare Department, Washington Post, for it.

• • • •

Have you a lace mantilla in an old trunk in the attic? Drag it forth, and have it made into a collar or capelet for an evening dress! Oh, don't cut it of course, because then it would just be another piece of lace and as it is, it is something valuable and lovely. But what with the present smartness of capelets, scarfs and odd collars of all sorts, you just can't leave it hidden out of sight any longer.

• • • •

The question mark as the latest novelty for trimming has quite vanquished poor Albert the Penguin, who was all the rage a few seasons ago. Some say that one of France's heros of the air started the idea. Whether or not it trims Milady's little hat, fashions her bag or gloves, the hook part of the question mark doing the work.

• • • •

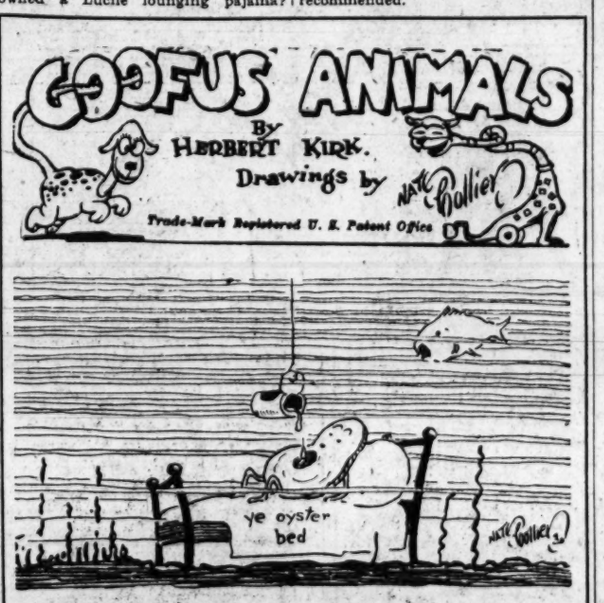
And here's the reminder again: the weekly Dare fashion letter is in the Sunday Washington Post every week.

Au revoir!

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PROTECTION AGAINST MILDEW.
(Bureau of Chemistry.)

Shoes kept in a warm, damp and dark place are almost certain to mildew. Mildew will not seriously harm the shoes unless it is allowed to remain too long, but it may change their color. The simplest way to prevent mildewing is to keep the shoes in a well-ventilated light place. When first detected the mildew should be washed off with soap and water or simply wiped off with a moist cloth and the leather well dried. The application in the home of preparations designed to prevent mildew is not recommended.



The Goofus Oyster

The Goofus Oyster you see disdains
The ordinary use of brains.
His pearl of wisdom is the knack
He has of lying on his back
And letting all food come to him,
A sort of economic sin—
One which I know is very great
But still would gladly imitate!

IN THE PLAYHOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

JUST to have a few thrills of their own, after a strenuous session in "Dracula," the Bram Stoker play, the National Theater Players yesterday afternoon went aloft, many of them, in a great tri-motored airplane.

Though no one fainted on the airplane ride, the tendency of the play, "Dracula," is to make the fair sex "pass out," as the saying has it. It is that sort of entertainment. So that anybody overcome by the carrying-on of Count Dracula may have prompt service, Mr. S. E. Cochran, the manager, has a nurse stationed in the back of the house.

• • • •

MENTION of Broadway brings to light the fact that only 27 dramatic and other kindred offerings are holding forth on the Street of Streets—making the new low for the year. One of the late departures is a play that saw its baptism of theater in Washington. This is "June Moon," the comedy by George S. Kaufman and Ring Lardner. It has been playing in New York since October 9, of last year, the week after it left Lafayette Square—and doing good business; till now. The cast being disbanded will probably be reassembled in the fall and sent on tour—with Washington as a port of call.

• • • •

SPEAKING of Ring Lardner, this is a sign of the times: Beauvais Fox, president of the Theatrical Press Agents of America, was trying to find out the other day what is the matter with the theater; why more people do not attend plays. He made a canvass, asked certain questions, and sent out a questionnaire. One of the questions had to do with "June Moon," the play, and its author, or co-author, Ring Lardner. "Who is Ring Lardner?" was the question asked. Sixty per cent of the answers rated Ring Lardner anywhere from a motion picture to a musical comedy, taking the name as a well-known title. Mr. Lardner has yet to comment.

ROMAINE CALLANDER, who played with Belasco all last year, has a role in "Dracula" that is about as fiendish as his heart might desire, he having played villains and demons and what have you since his debut on the stage—y'ars and y'ars ago.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

WHEN YOUR EASTER LILY BULB HAS RESTED.

NATURALLY, when your Easter lily has finished blooming you look forward to the time, several months hence, when the plant will again be covered with perhaps a half dozen large, sunny blossoms.

Your expectations will be realized provided you give your plant proper care at this time. For it will now be entering its period of well-deserved rest, which means that it must be unmolested in every way. The first thing to do as the flowers fade is to cut them off. Do this one at a time. This will encourage the last bud to unfold. When the last flower is gone, gradually cease to water the plant. Some water must be given until every leaf has turned yellow and has become dry.

When you have ceased to water your lily, cut the main stem or stems off close to the roots and set the pot containing the soil and bulb in some dark, dry place for about six weeks.

Usually Easter lilies have been so thoroughly forced in the greenhouses that the vitality of the bulb is at low ebb. For this reason you can rarely coax a plant to develop large heads of bloom in the house the following year. However, if you are content to have rather indifferent blossoms next Easter, you may be reasonably sure of having unusually fine blooms the third season.

For the benefit of all those who are too impatient to wait two years for really fine lilies, let me suggest that you set your bulb, when you are sure that it is ripe, in some sunny location in your garden and leave it to follow its own inclinations. This usually means that if the soil in which you plant your lily is rich, the bulb will immediately begin to grow, and by the last of August you will have more lilies. These blooms will not be quite as large as the ones you had at Easter, but they will be equally perfect ones.

The Easter lily is quite hardy in most sections, provided the bulb is covered with a light covering of well-rotted manure or some litter, such as dead leaves or even pine boughs. The second summer the bulb is in the open the flowers are usually as large as they were the year the bulb was forced in the greenhouse.

Girl Scouts Will Help Casualty Hospital Fund

The Girl Scouts of the District yesterday offered their assistance to Casualty Hospital in its campaign for a $50,000 building and equipment fund. Miss Dorothy Green, director of the Girl Scouts in Washington, yesterday told Roscoe Fertich, chairman of the campaign executive committee, that she would ask Scout captains to distribute 1,000 tickets to the hospital benefit day on the Convict Ship Monday.

It was also announced yesterday that the Hu'low sisters, Eleanor, 17, and Ruth, 16, would broadcast a program of songs and dances for the benefit of the hospital on Saturday at 1 o'clock from Station WOL. The girls live at 300 Ninth street northeast.

University Club Board Plans Improvement

The board of governors of the University Club has practically decided on a plan for building improvements for which bids will be asked shortly, it was learned yesterday. The plan provides for three new floors to provide additional bedrooms, new rooms for cards, billards, pool and ping-pong on the ninth floor.

A gymnasium with squash courts, showers and lockers, and a roof garden will be built on top the renovated building. Additional private dining rooms and expanded quarters for women on the ground floor are also contemplated.

How to Keep Well

WHY THERE ARE DRINKERS

FOR several years there waged a controversy over this question: Does the drunkard become touched in the head because of drink or does he become a drunkard because he is touched in the head? In later years there has been something of an agreement that both sides were right.

In the January number of Mental Hygiene R. R. Peabody discusses the mental cure of chronic alcoholism. He bases treatment on the thesis that the drunkard was touched in the head before he began and still more so as the effects of the drug.

The affliction falls rather more on the field of personality disturbance than in that commonly called insanity or mental disturbance. The impulse to become a drunkard is not inherited, but the personality peculiarities that supply the foundations are. Home environment and home influences are more important factors, and possibly training or lack of it ranks first among the fundamental causes.

He divides alcohol addicts—the chronic drinkers—into three groups: Those who go on periodic debauches, abstaining during the intervals; the men who drink nothing during the day but who start when they stop work and drink until they sleep; and, finally, the group who must have a drink when they get up in the morning and who keep nicely snozzled all day. There is personality and mental sickness which belongs to each group and in each case differs from the other.

Peabody writes only about the third group, the day drinkers. He speaks of them as needing a drink rather than wanting one. Neither mentally nor physically can they function properly or feel comfortable and happy until they get just about so drunk. He has nothing to say about methods of getting these men on the water wagon. His problem is the far more important one of keeping them there.

Whatever the form of alcoholism or, for that matter, morphinism, cocainism, or other drug drunkenness, getting the man sobered up is fairly easy. The cold turkey cure, jail cure, and all kinds of frank, honest drug cures work reasonably well.

Then comes the problem of taking a broken reed and converting it into an iron staff. And that is no easy job. To take a personality which was diseased to begin with, and then made worse by indulgence in alcohol, cowardice, fancy flights, and emotional drunks, and convert it into character and stability, requires intelligence and work. He says each case requires from 50 to 100 hours of the trainer's individual attention and the wholehearted, intelligent cooperation of the subject. In some instances the job can be accomplished in a few months. In some, years are required. In some, no bricks can be made because there are no straws.

The principles are given in Mental Hygiene. The details, the instructor and subject must develop.

OLD SULPHUR AND MOLASSES.

M. M. writes: Please advise if that old spring tonic, sulphur and molasses, is harmful to an adult. If not, what is the correct dose and how often?

REPLY.

It is not except for the diabetic, the obese and those who are troubled by sweets. The combination acts as a mild laxative. Molasses has that action. So does sulphur, though it may have some added action. Ordinarily, a tablespoonful before breakfast is the dose. There is no danger of overdosing. For all its reputation, sulphur and molasses as a spring tonic is not equal to home made sassafras tea.

SCHMELING ASSERTS HE WILL DEPEND ON SPEED, PUNCH TO WIN

Believes His Crouching Style Nullifies Foe's Feints.

No Secret Training or "Bunk" as Bout Draws Near.

By MAX SCHMELING
(As Told to Paul Gallico).

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., June 5.—The time is not yet at hand for the prize fighters involved in the impending bout for the heavyweight championship to squabble and bluster about their rights and the protection of their interests. That should begin about Tuesday or Wednesday of next week, as the final sound in the ballyhoo, the fight being on the docket for Thursday evening.

But, in the meanwhile, one hears no discussion of the rights of the customers and the necessity of protecting their interests, if one may assume that customers have rights and interests in these affairs, and I much doubt that any precautions will be taken in this regard, because no such precautions ever have been taken.

From where your correspondent sits in a very hot, muggy little servants' cottage of Gus Wilson's property, which has been converted into a press headquarters, with a wide pine shelf running around the walls of the room upon which several typewriters are receiving a furious beating at this moment, it appears that the customers need at least as much protection as Jack Sharkey and Max Schmeling.

Fans Never Fouled A Fighter.

The customers have a very good record. They never have fouled a prizefighter and there is not a case on record in all the history of the prizefighting industry in which the patrons of the racket engaged in a frame-up. And, considering the recent secret history of the heavyweight championship, the character of the persons who interest themselves in the business affairs of the ring nowadays and the outcome of the last two heavyweight elimination contests, I should estimate that the customers' chances of receiving an even break are about one in ten.

I understand that Mr. Sharkey is a very devoted husband and father, a church-going devotee of his religion, a well-behaved Boston suburbanite, and the owner of a pretentious home with a full equipment of authentic New England antiques and a four-car garage—this is hearsay—but I have no reason to doubt it and am willing to accept it all as the truth for whatever it may be worth.

But, I also understand from my own observation of the young man in several tarining camps and prize fights that he is a foul-mouthed, hysterical, front-running blatherskite, and I can not dismiss my latest impression of him in a fighting ring, on which occasion, finding himself licked, he delivered half a dozen foul punches.

Was Quitting Of a Sort.

He realized that his opponent, Fainting Philip Scott, was in no position to retire on a claim of foul, and when Scott reached out in his panicky retreat and hit him a pat on the teeth, Sharkey lowered his head and began winging punches below the waistline. This was quitting of a sort, because he thoroughly understood that fainting Philip, on account of his own bad reputation, would not be permitted to win by a foul.

I refrain from charging that Sharkey delivered these fouls purposely, because I understand that in a recent libel suit by a fouling prize fighter against a New York paper the defendant was unable to show access to the prize fighters' mind or even to prove that prize fighters have minds, and therefore lost the suit by a technical knockout. So I do not allege that Sharkey purposely fouled Scott, but only point out that the fouls followed quickly upon Scott's demonstration that he was the stronger man and the better boxer.

In the more intimate observations of Sharkey, I take him to be of the bullying, tough-talking kind, fond of cuffing his physical inferiors in playful brutality and bellowing at them in public, like a petty executive showing his contemptible authority over his staff before visitors. The stories of the character of John L. Sullivan which I have read give him a similar reputation, but with this difference—that when Sullivan blustered he barred no man in the world, and never quit in a fight. I am convinced that Sharkey did in at least two of his prize fights, the one with Dempsey and the one with Scott.

These characteristics are not to be held against Sharkey, as they are the Akron Heavyweight Is Punching Bag After 1st Round.

DETROIT, June 5 (A.P.).—Before 18,000 fans who paid $75,000 for the privilege of watching him perform, Primo Carnera, giant Italian, knocked out Meyer ("K. O.") Christner, of Akron, Ohio, in the fourth round of their ten-round bout here tonight.

The fourth round had gone only 1 minute and 20 seconds when Carnera landed a terrific left hook to the point of the jaw and Christner went down and out. Carnera worked up to the grand finale most systematically after losing the first round by a wide margin on points.

He made plenty of play for that bad left eye of Christner's and at the close of the third round had it swelling. He sank in a brace of left jabs to start the fourth round and the blood flowed so that Christner could barely see. The finishing touch was then merely a matter of course.

Christner put up a game struggle all the way but the odds were against him in most every way. Carnera entered the ring at 265 pounds and Christner at 201.

Indians, on Rampage, Trounce Red Sox, 17-7

Cleveland, June 5 (A.P.).—The Cleveland Indians went on a batting rampage today to take a 2-to-1 lead in their series with the Boston Red Sox, by a score of 17 to 7.

The Indians' 25 hits included Eddie Morgan's eighth home run of the season. Milton Gaston was driven to the showers by a six-hit barrage in the first inning, and before George Smith was able to ring up three outs the locals had scored nine runs. Dick Porter led the Cleveland attack with four hits in five times at bat. Clint Brown, young right-hander, held Boston to nine hits, including Todt's home run.

Sharkey Rocks Partners With Rights, Uppercuts

Orangeburg, N. Y., June 5 (A. P.).—Jack Sharkey had his weight down to 198 pounds after five rounds of boxing in the outdoor arena here today. Following his usual routine, Sharkey worked out against his three sparring partners, shortening his punches and perfecting a fast countering style. He rocked his mates frequently with hard straight rights and well-timed uppercuts.

The American heavyweight will continue to box until Monday, then taper off with light exercises Tuesday, to conclude his training for the fight at the Yankee Stadium June 12.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, June 5.—When Sam Rice singled in the opening session he extended his second long-hitting streak of the season to fifteen consecutive games.

Joe Judge made a valiant effort to snare Funk's foul in the home first, racing fully 50 yards only to miss reaching the ball by inches.

Jones walked Gehringer on four successive balls in the first.

Goslin helped hold the Tigers to one run in their opening round by traveling almost to the scoreboard to take Rogell's liner with one hand. The latter, by the way, played third in place of McManus, who was badly shaken up when colliding with Pitcher Myles Thomas in yesterday's game.

West came in fast for Sorrell's Texas Leaguer in the second, but could not quite get up in time.

The official scorer was kind to Joe Judge in the second round when he did not charge the Nat captain with an error on Gehringer's fielder's choice. Sorrell was tearing home with the first run of the frame and Joe's peg was low and toward third. Spencer made a fine diving catch to stop the ball. Had Joe's throw been good, the Tigers would have scored but once in the frame.

Johnson raced back close to the right field fence to take West's liner at arm's length over his head in the third.

After missing gobbling up Hargrave's hot grasser after diving for it in the third, Funk shot one down the same alley and Myer came up

Jones Yields 1 Run in First Inning and 4 in Second.

Goslin's Long Homer in Vain; Sorrell Repulses Nats.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, June 5.—Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones did his warming up for today's game in the first two innings, during which the Tigers molded five runs, and this cost the Nationals the ball game. Over the balance of the route the Nats had a shade the better of the argument, but the best they could draw from the tussle was a 6-to-2 defeat. They kept pace one game behind the leading Mackmen, however, as a result of the latter's loss at St. Louis.

Although the Tigers did not outslug the Nats by a large margin, five of their blows were good for extra bases, while they were fortunate in getting several at most timely moments. Bob Burke relieved Jones after the sixth and allowed but one hit during the two frames he toiled.

Vic Sorrell went the route for the Jungle Cats and was generally effective, yielding runs in but one frame, the fourth, and then managing to put on the brakes before the Nats seriously threatened the lead he was enjoying.

Goslin Clouts Ball Over Wall.

Goslin greeted Sorrell in the fourth with a clout over the right-field wall, a prodigious blow, giving the Goose a home-run total of seven for the season. Buddie Myer, with two doubles, and Joe Judge, with two singles, were the other high guns for the Johnsons, while Stone, subbing for Fothergill, showed the way to the Bengal swatsmiths. He lashed out a triple, double and single.

Jones, who, as a National, had never been beaten by the Tigers, appeared to have nothing more than a prayer, as the players say, when he took the mound and the Tigers hopped on his slants for five runs in the first two frames. Then, with the game practically lost, he pulled himself together and performed fairly well, although he was lucky to escape unscathed in the fifth.

With one out, Gehringer walked in the native first and this move was turned into a run when followed by

ROW MARKS VICTORY OF ROBINS

BROOKLYN, June 5 (A.P.).—Glenn Wright, star Brooklyn shortstop, returned to action today to take the key position in a fast double play that ended the final game of the series with the Pittsburgh Pirates in a 6 to 5 victory for Brooklyn and in a scuffle at the home plate as the Pirates protested the umpire's decision on the play.

Brooklyn went into the ninth with a one-run lead, but the Pirates put two men on base. After one man had been retired, Paul Waner grounded Towers, whose throw to Wright forced Mosolf at second. Hemsley tried to score from second on the out and Wright just caught him at the plate.

Hemsley dashed at Umpire Ted McGrew and jostled him about while Manager Jewelens and Coach Max Carey joined in the protest, which lasted until a special policeman came on the field and escorted the umpires to their dressings rooms.

The play came as the climax of an exciting game in which the Pirates staged a futile uphill battle. The Robins drove Jess Petty from the mound in the fifth inning to score four runs that gave them the victory.

5 RUNS IN 9TH BY BROWNS BEAT A'S

ST. LOUIS, June 5 (A.P.).—The Brown staged a five-run rally in the ninth inning today to nose out the Philadelphia Athletics, 6-5. Until the ninth Walberg had pitched effectively, allowing only one run. In the final stanza, after the Browns had put over a run, Walberg left the game with the bases filled, and for the third day in succession Jack Quinn went in as a relief pitcher.

Unlike the two previous days, Quinn failed to baffle the Browns and was charged with the defeat. "General" Al Crowder went the distance for the Browns.

The defeat marked the end of the Athletics' ten-game winning streak, but they held their one-game lead over the second-place Washington Club, which was beaten by the Tigers.

QUESTIONNAIRE LOOMS AS THIRD BELMONT THREAT

Six Starters Probable in Classic

Butler Colt's Win at Mile and Eighth In 1:49 Impressive.

Presence of Gallant Fox and Whichone Limits Field.

NEW YORK, June 5 (A.P.).—A dark horse has appeared in the advance picture of the Belmont stakes and as the result James Butler's silks may be flying in front of Whichone and Gallant Fox, when the pick of the 3-year-olds flash past the judges stand in the rich turf fixture at Belmont Saturday.

Questionnaire is the Butler horse figured to give Whichone and Gallant Fox a run for the money—If such a thing is done by any thoroughbred in the mile and one-half test. While lacking the impressive record that rates Harry Payne Whitney's Whichone and William Woodward's Gallant Fox as the co-favorites at even money, Questionnaire has a mile and an eighth race in 1:49 to stamp him as a real contender.

The Butler three-year old has been slow in rounding into form this season, but on the basis of his race Tuesday, he is fit and ready for Saturday's big test. Pitted against three other speedy colts, the Son of Sting went the mile and one-eighth in 1:49 to spread-eagle his field by ten lengths. The time was three-fifths of a second faster than the mark hung up by Gallant Fox in his last fast trial on the same day.

Only Two Started in Four Previous Races.

On the basis of the speedy times made by Gallant Fox and Questionaire Tuesday and Whichone's mile and one-half in 2:31 4-5 yesterday, not more than six three-year olds are expected to face the barrier in the race for $60,000. It will not be the smallest field in the history of Belmont stakes, however, as only two started on four separate occasions.

Man O'War had only Donnacona to defeat in the 1920 renewal of the historic stake while Hanover won in 1887, Sir Dixon in 1888 and Patron in 1892, when there were only two starters.

3 Belmont Candidates Take Final Workouts

Special to The Washington Post.

Belmont Park, June 5.—Candidates for the historic Belmont Stakes had their final workouts yesterday. Gallant Fox was sent for a gallop of 1½ miles. The big 3-year-old looked the picture of health as he made the trip around the 1½-mile oval. Earl Sande was up on the son of Sir Galahad III—Marguerite. No effort was made for speed. James Butler's Questionnaire, which raced such a sensational 1¼ miles in 1:49 in the Colin Purse, was out on the Belmont track. Trainer Andy Schuttinger sent the son of Sting—Miss Puzzle 1¼ miles in 2:04. It was nothing more than a fast gallop.

Trainer Thomas J. Healey, of the H. P. Whitney forces, did nothing more than allow Whichone, the favorite for the Belmont Stakes, to take a turn around the track.

$900 Belmont Purses Go Begging in Race

Special to The Washington Post.

Belmont Park, N. Y., June 5.—Nine hundred dollars in purses went begging here today with the running of the Meadowbrook Steeplechase, one of the most unusual races staged in the history of the turf.

Thomas Hitchcock's Darkness won first place money, $2,950, but he was the only one of three starters to finish. Melita II, an added starter from the Flying Horse Farm, repeatedly refused to take down second money after Jolly Roger, Mrs. Payne Whitney's veteran jumper, suffered a spill at the third jump, severely injuring Jockey Dolly Byers. Melita ran out, refused a couple of jumps and finally ran the wrong way. Jockey Kelly, on Melita, gave up after a long battle with Melita and was content to let the second place money, $600, go unawarded.

Sidney Grant Winner At Washington Park

Washington Park Race Track, Ill., June 5 (A.P.).—Displaying an unexpected fondness for the slightly heavy going, Sidney Grant, a 3-year-old colt from the stable of A. Bartelstein, of Cicero, captured the Avalo Park allowances purse at 1 mile at Washington Park today. A rainstorm had thoroughly drenched the racing strip earlier in the program.

M'GONIGLE was at home in going, rated in pursuit of the leading WHISKARM under restwaint to stretch, responded when called upon and, taking command reaching last furlong, drew out handily. DEVON gained steadily, began wearing down the leaders at the stretch turn and closed stoutly, but could not get to the winner. WHISKARM, also showing a liking for the going, went into a long early lead, but began to tire at the end of the first furlongs, but held on for place. DON FERNANDO was unable to improve his position and tired in the final drive.

ARMY INVESTIGATES ATHLETICS AT WEST POINT

Hurley to Get Report of Probe

Special Investigation Is Completed by General Drum.

Action Follows Cagle Incident and Break With Annapolis.

(Associated Press.)

A THOROUGH investigation of athletics at West Point has been made by Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, inspector general of the Army, and a special report on the subject is to be given shortly to Secretary Hurley.

War Department officials declined last night to go into details of the investigation or its causes. They said the report had not as yet been turned in by Gen. Drum but that its findings might be made public by the Secretary later. Although inspections at the Military Academy are made in routine course by the inspector general, together with visits to all principal Army posts, this investigation, the department officials said, was a special one.

Academy athletics have been much in teh public eye of late, first through the Army-Navy football rupture over the player eligibility rules, and more recently through the resignation a few weeks before graduation of "Red" Cagle, all-American football star with the attendant ervelation that, in defiance of Academy rules, he had been married nearly two years.

At that time charges were made, but denied, that the Academy authorities had been aware of Cagle's marriage and had done nothing about it in order to keep him on the team.

SCHMELING RELIES ON SPEED, PUNCH

nervous system than Jack Sharkey. A fighter can overtrain, you know, and when he becomes cranky or jumpy and nervous it is not a sign he is a coward or afraid. It is simply a condition of the body and it is too bad, because a man is not at his best when he is too tense.

It is the same in golf. The calm, methodical man has the best timing in striking his ball. A nervous, jerky swing is bad. I want to preserve my calm ways, as I think it will give me a distinct advantage.

My critics say Sharkey is a good boxer and will feint me into awkward openings. They forget I am not going to fight a stand up, sparring style where feints will do a man good. I am going to crouch and fight a slugging, aggressive style, bent over and closing in, always punching. All the feints in the world will not help a man against that plan, and I hereby generously warn my esteemed opponent not to rely too much on his clever head and shoulder feints.

Mrs. Norment Reaches Chevy Chase Finals

Mrs. C. F. Norment, defending champion, advanced to the final in the women's singles division of the Chevy Chase Club championship tennis tournament yesterday by defeating Mrs. E. K. Morris, 8—1, 6—0. In a quarter-final match, Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., defeated Laura Prochnik by the same score.

In the men's doubles H. B. Rowan and Capt. Crain eliminated Maj. Georges Thenault and Arthur B. Lane by a score of 6—2, 6—3.

Von Porat, Suspended, May Fight Stribling

Chicago, June 5 (A.P.).—The Illinois State Athletic Commission probably has changed Otto Von Porat's mind about meeting W. L. (Young) Stribling at the Chicago Stadium June 16.

After Von Porat, Norway's contender for the heavyweight boxing title, and his manager, Ed Stevenson, refused to keep their verbal agreement with the stadium for the match, the commission today slapped a six-month suspension on each of them with the usual recommendation that the banishments be enforced throughout all States affiliated with the National Boxing Association.

Facing six months' suspension, just when he appeared in the best condition in his ring career, Von Porat went into a huddle with Manager Stevenson. So far they are undecided, but probably will keep the agreement after all.

Mixed Doubles Play Postponed for Week

Play in the mixed doubles division of the City of Washington tennis tournament has been postponed until next week. The semifinal match scheduled between the teams of Frances Walker and Muscoe Garnett and Phoebe Moorhead and Joe Rutley probably will be held Sunday morning at Columbia Country Club. The winner will engage Josephine Dunham and Pat Deck in the championship match.

CHEVY CHASE HONORS TO FULLER

Defeats Smith by 3 Strokes to Gain Club Title.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

C. ASHMEAD FULLER yesterday won the championship of the Chevy Chase Club, concluding a competition of 72 holes, medal play, three strokes ahead of his nearest competitor, Emmons Smith. Fuller had a total of 314, two strokes lower than the aggregate by which he won the title last year, while Smith was 317.

When the fourth and last round of 18 holes was commenced yesterday afternoon, Fuller and Fred Hitz were tied with a total of 237 strokes and Smith was three strokes behind. At the conclusion of the first 9 holes, Fuller, who had a card of 40, was only one stroke in the lead, Hitz having negotiated the outward journey in 41. On the second 9, Hitz met his waterloo.

Fuller Makes 7 On 15th.

Meanwhile Fuller was playing practically every hole in par until he came to the fifteenth, when, after taking three shots in the right-hand bunker, he finally holed out for a 7. Fortunately, he played the second 9 in 37, despite his near disaster on the fifteenth, for a 77.

Fuller's victory yesterday was his fifth winning of the club championship. He was champion in 1924, 1925, 1927 and 1929. In 1926 he finished fourth and in 1928 was runner-up to Walter R. Tuckerman. The cards:

R. P. Davidson.....	74	85	83	78	—320

Siamese Cup Finals Today.

The final round in the competition for the Siamese cup will be played this morning on the Chevy Chase course between Mrs. Harrison Brand, jr., and Mrs. L. O. Cameron. The latter defeated Mrs. J. W. Beller in the semifinal round, 3 and 2, but Mrs. Brand had a prolonged struggle before winning from Miss Susan Hacker. Mrs. Brand was 3 up at the thirteenth tee, having won the twelfth with a birdie 3, but Miss Hacker staged a comeback, the match being finally squared on the home green. Then nine additional holes were played, Mrs. Brand finally winning by the narrow margin of 1 up.

Boys, Juniors Await City Tennis Tourney

Washington's boy and junior tennis players are marking time, waiting for the opening tomorrow morning of the annual championship tournament which will produce this city's representatives in the Middle Atlantic L. T. A. sectional boys and juniors championships at Richmond. Play will open at 10 o'clock on the Rock Creek courts, Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest.

According to Robert Newby, treasurer of the Middle Atlantic Association and the man promoting this tournament, the largest entry list for such an event in the city's history is anticipated.

Newby will receive all entries tomorrow morning at the courts between 9 and 9:30 o'clock. The fee per player is $1.

Jock McLean will enter the boys' section in defense of the title he won in 1929, while Frank Shore will defend the junior championship.

Dykes Enters Hospital; Simmons Due to Leave

Philadelphia, June 5 (A.P.).—Jimmy Dykes, the Philadelphia Athletics' third baseman, is expected to spend the next three weeks in the graduate hospital of the University of Pennsylvania under observation for intestinal trouble.

As Dykes entered the hospital today, Al Simmons, another Athletics casualty, was expecting to leave tomorrow. He has been in the hospital since last week with an injured knee.

"I don't know whether I will be able to play when I get to Chicago. My knee is still tightly bandaged," he said.

Both Simmons and Dykes have been out of action since Memorial Day.

Track Aces Qualify Today For National Titular Meet

Simpson Faces Nation's Best Sprinters; Ten Champions to Defend Honors at Stagg Field; West Sends Stars.

CHICAGO, June 5 (A.P.).—Ten defending champions and a brilliant host of threats to keep them from repeating their 1929 victories will descend in force on Stagg Field at the University of Chicago tomorrow for qualifying tests in the Ninth Annual National Collegiate Track and Field Championships.

The event, the final collegiate track and field test of the season, will be more truly national than ever before. All sections of the country have sent their best, including the Pacific Coast delegation of Southern California, Leland Stanford and California.

Interest as usual will be centered on the classic 100-yard dash in which George Simpson, the Ohio Comet, will have a threefold task before him. He not only has the job of successfully defending his title in the event, but will disappoint his followers if he does not, at least, equal his great 0:09.4 performance of last year.

His competition will be tougher than when he made the mark. Against him will be Frank Wykoff, of Southern California, winner of the century in the Eastern intercollegiates last week, and also possessor of a mark of 0:09.4; Cy Leland, of Texas Christian University; Claude Bracey, the Dixie flier from Rice Institute, who won the 100 and 220 in the 1928 nationals; Eddie Tolan, of Michigan, world record holder of 0:9.5, and Hubert Meir, of Iowa State, another "nine-two" man. Simpson will face the same field in the 220-yard dash in which he is cohoider with Roland Locke, of Nebraska, of the record of 0:20.6.

Capital City League Section Leaders in Clashes Sunday

Mohawks-Columbia Heights, St. Joseph's-Eagles Meet; Important Battles Scheduled in County Divisions.

HIGH hurdles will confront contenders for various Capital City League titles Saturday and Sunday. In many of the divisions, teams grappling for leadership are scheduled to meet.

Two contests stand out on the District unlimited section schedule, as the undefeated Mohawk and Columbia Heighth nines are slated to meet and the champion St. Joseph's A. C. Nine meets the unbeaten Anacostia Eagles.

The Rockville A. A. and Chevy Chase Gray nines, two of the three tied for the lead in Montgomery County, are to clash at Rockville, and the champion Bowie A. C. Club is to face the leading Dixie Pig A. C. slugging array in the Prince Georges County section headliner.

Spirited Virginia Battles Forecast.

Two spirited battles are promised in the Virginia section as Pop Wood's rejuvenated Woodlawns are to engage Charley Deuterman's strong Bauserman Motor Co. tossers and the Ballston A. C. Nine is to meet the leading Jefferson District Firemen. These two engagements will probably go far in determining the ultimate championship winner of that section.

The Neighborhood House Senators loom as a serious threat before the unbeaten C. A. O'Brien sluggers in the section A senior class race. Both the Curtin's All-Stars and Olmsted Grill nines, undefeated to date, face possible upsets in section B games. The Miller Furniture Co. and Lionel teams will test the leaders' strength.

Undefeated Midgets To Battle.

Two undefeated nines will battle in the midget class feature. The Sam Wests, triumphant in two starts, and the Lionels, victorious in their lone engagement, will clash in this contest. American Legion nines will inaugurate their third annual series in three games.

The first battle of the undefeateds will be staged tomorrow when the Lionel and Georgetown Peewee title aspirants face. Each has three victories in as many starts and as both teams hail from Georgetown, a real battle is expected.

Nats-Tigers Deal Brews; Report Denied by Griffith

Names of Fothergill, Braxton and Barnes Mentioned in Prospective Trade; Johnson and Harris May Confer Today.

Reports that a player trade was being considered by the Washington and Detroit clubs were vigorously denied last night by Clark Griffith, owner and president of the Nats.

"It is customary to consult the president of the club before a deal is made and no trade has been broached to me," said Griffith.

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, June 5.—Before the Nationals leave here tomorrow night, there is a possibility that Managers Walter Johnson and Bucky Harris engineer a trade.

To date no actual negotiations have been started but the matter has progressed to the extent that Harris has intimated that he has some players he can spare in which Johnson is interested and Johnson knows that the Tiger leader has his eye on one or two of the Nats. The players actually mentioned are "Fat" Fothergill, of the Tigers, and Pitcher Garland Braxton and Outfielder Red Barnes.

Ever since the Nationals arrived here, the two skippers have adopted a "watchful waiting" policy, although Harris is reported as saying that he planned to have a talk with Johnson, while the latter told the writer tonight he would be glad to hear what Harris has on his mind in the way of propositions.

Harris' Chances for Braxton Nil.

Of course, what players they want and what they get, if any, is very uncertain. Harris, for instance, says he would like to get Pitcher Braxton and everyone knows that he hasn't a Chinaman's chance of landing the slim southpaw, especially with Fred Marberry not at his best. At this writing, Braxton is the only capable relief flinger on Johnson's staff. Already, he has saved five games in addition to being credited with two victories as against one loss.

The Tiger leader also believes that Outfielder Barnes would fit in with his combination. The Alabama red head had his best season under Harris' management. If Harris really wants Barnes, he probably can get him. These are the only two players Harris has mentioned, as of course he knows that he has no chance of getting any of the regulars.

Johnson adds, however, that he has a couple of men he can spare whom he believes the Tigers could use.

Johnson Could Use Fothergill.

As to Johnson's desires, he admits that he could use Outfielder Fothergill, "the people's choice," as he is called here. This big fellow would be the answer to the Nats' leader's prayer for a hard hitter who swings from the right side of the plate. While he probably would not break into the Washington line-up regularly if obtained, he is used to filling a pinch-hitting role and has the happy faculty of being able to hold his batting form and keep his eye sharp even while only working occasionally.

"Sure, I'd like to have Fothergill on my club," said Johnson, "and if not him, some of the other talent which Harris has and probably could spare in a deal. If he wants to talk to me, I'll be glad to listen to him. I might be able to make him a proposition which would interest him."

And so fans need not be surprised if there is something doing here tomorrow, which will be Harris' last chance to see Johnson on this trip.

The series with the Tigers will end tomorrow, with Lloyd Brown and George Uhle probably hurling for their respective teams. Brown was unsteady in his last two starts, but has been working hard since and promises a winning effort tomorrow, and with no relief needed, either. The Nats need this game to take the series edge.

Manager Harris, of the Tigers, is so up against it for pitchers that he was forced to take a long shift on the hill himself in his team's pregame stick drill. Incidentally, he received a nasty crack when a liner from Funk's bat collided with his right knee, but he stuck to his task.

Irving Hadley, who has been bothered with a sore flipping wing, took a most strenuous workout before today's game, later reporting to Pilot Johnson that he believes he is ready to take his regular turn again.

STARS FOR ISHERWOOD.

A home run by Outfielder Fletcher with two on in the fourth inning gave the Isherwood A. C. a lead over the St. Elizabeths Hospital Nine which it never relinquished, the final score being 8 to 6. Fletcher also came through with two nice running catches. The winners will play the Virginia White Sox Sunday at Baileys Cross Roads.

STOCK SALES RISE AS PRICES DECLINE

Weak Carriers Head Long List of Shares Losing 2 to 4 Points.

GRAIN PRICES ADVANCE

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—The bear crowd took charge of the stock market today and went home leaving a long list of 2 to 4 point declines on the quotation table. Weakness of the coppers and the rails during the morning engendered a selling movement that dislodged stop-loss orders, with the result that activity increased sharply, especially in the final hour. Short covering reduced most of the extreme losses.

The day's news failed to stir up much enthusiasm. One of the most encouraging items was the upturn in bar silver, whose weakness has been causing some concern because of its effect on the currencies of so large a part of the world's population. The rise of 2 cents here canceled the loss on the last two days.

Bankers' acceptances were again reduced ⅛ of 1 per cent. The second cut of that size in 24 hours. This announcement, however, was interpreted more unfavorably than otherwise, for it served to emphasize the extreme slowness of the demand for commercial credit. Neither the Bank of England nor the New York Federal Reserve Bank, both of which are apparently doing what they can to aid business, cut their discount rates, although the spread between bankers' bills and the bank rates is unusually large and would suggest a further downward revision of the latter.

Bank Stocks Touch New Lows.

Leading bank stocks of the New York market broke to new low levels for the year. Investment trusts and holding companies were reputedly sellers of these securities, whose decline was attributed to the low interest rates and the prospects of smaller earnings by the financial institutions. The stock of the First National Bank of New York fell 100 points.

Brokers' loan figures showed a gain of $79,000,000 to a total of $4,101,000,000. In the absence of strength in the share market during the week ended June 4—which embraced the Memorial Day vacation—there was a disposition to account for this gain in a distribution of new securities, particularly bonds. The total of new issues of the latter in May was the largest for any month this year, slightly exceeding the January volume.

The loan figures revealed a jump of $134,000,000 in loans for New York City member banks' own accounts and a rise of $13,000,000 in loans for out-of-town banks, but the "loans for others" items declined $62,000,000.

Discounts Drop $12,000,000.

Another increase in the amount of Federal Reserve credit outstanding was disclosed in the weekly statement of the banks. Total of bills and securities for the local bank showed a rise of $26,000,000, while the gain for the system as a whole was $20,000,000. Discounts, however, were off, declining $4,000,000 here and $8,000,000 at the twelve banks. Bills bought in the open market gained $27,000,000 at the New York bank and $14,000,000 in the system. Federal Reserve note circulation declined moderately.

Grain prices rallied, wheat advancing about a point on reports of hail damage in Kansas and bullish European crop news, particularly from France and Italy. Corn was up ¼ to 1¼. Cotton improved 8 to 21 points net after small early declines, while sugar was firm.

Crude rubber futures made new lows for the second successive day under bearish pressure in this market as well as in London. Two American tire manufacturers announced 5 per cent cuts in the prices of popular lines.

Sales Well Distributed.

Selling of stocks was well distributed during the afternoon liquidation. U. S. Steel broke 3 points to a new low for the movement, but got back a point. Other popular industrials losing 1 to 3 were American Can, American Tobacco B, Anaconda Copper, Du Pont, General Electric, Johns Manville, Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Westinghouse, Goodrich and Goodyear.

Utilities down 2 to 4 points included American & Foreign Power, American Telephone, American Power & Light, Electric Power & Light, Consolidated Gas, Stone & Webster and Western Union.

Wabash Railroad dropped 4 points to a new low. Pennsylvania lost a point and New York Central was off nearly 2.

The specialties, as usual, yielded more readily. J. I. Case, off 16½ points at the lowest, finished 11 points lower. Auburn Auto, Columbian Carbon, Eastman Kodak, Foster Wheeler, Vanadium, Worthington Pump, Glidden and United Aircraft tumbled 2 to 7. Coty made a new low on the omission of the quarterly dividend of 50 cents.

Foreign exchanges firmed after early irregularity. Sterling had a small gain on the day while the Canadian dollar squeezed up to a small premium. Far Easterns improved with the better tone to the silver market.

BOND PRICES RALLY AS SALES ADVANCE

Domestic Section Improved as Foreign Issues Continue Firm.

MONEY RATES ARE EASIER

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Further easing of credit conditions provided an impetus to gilt edge bonds in the listed bond market today. Trading broadened during the afternoon and the tone of the domestic section was considerably improved as foreign bonds continued broad and firm. The volume was $1,700,000 more than yesterday.

For the second day in succession Boston and New York bill rates were pared ⅛ of 1 per cent, although time and call money rates continued unchanged. The expectation in some quarters that the spread between bill rates and money rates would be adjusted by the New York Federal Reserve was not realized, as the bank directors announced no change in the 3 per cent rediscount rate at their meeting late this afternoon.

Government Issues Active.

First to show the stimulating effect of the tonic were United States Governments which found new life after days of dullness. The turnover was the largest of the week with Liberty 4th 4¼s and Treasury 4¼s accumulated extensively. Liberty 4th 4¼s established a new high for the year and Treasury 4¼s gained more than ¼ of a point. U. S. Governments now are close to 1930 high levels.

Numerous issues in all three departments of the domestic list felt the stimulus of the broadened activity. Heaviest trading was in American Telephone 8s, National Dairy 5½s, Erie 5s, Pennsylvania 4½s, which gained from ⅛ to ⅝, and a few convertible issues which were irregular. As a whole the improvement among utilities and the better grade industrials was better than in the rails.

French Issues Gain Slightly.

The purchase of foreign bonds for investors abroad continued on a wide scale, but price appreciation with a few exceptions was small. German 7s and German bank issues were firm. Belgian and French issues gained from ⅛ to ½, but other leading European governments made no headway.

The market had little competition from new securities today. The volume, amounting to about $2,000,000 was especially light. Further explanation of the slow progress of the market during May is given by the announcement that new bond offerings in that month were the greatest of the year, totaling $830,921,000, nearly twice those of May, 1929.

New offerings in prospect included a $50,000,000 issue of short term convertible notes of the Middle West Utilities Co., which will be offered shortly by a syndicate headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co.

POLE SEES CAPITAL AS BANKING CENTER

Regional Branch System Would Aid in Growth, U. S. Official Says.

PICK TWO COMMITTEES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Asheville, N. C., June 5.—Washington will become an important banking center under any system of regional branch banking which eventually may be adopted. Such was the prediction of Comptroller of Currency John W. Pole, addressing the opening session of the District of Columbia Bankers Association convention here.

While the National Capital is not and probably never will be a great industrial or commercial center, according to Mr. Pole, and its trade area of a different type from that of some cities in other parts of the country, nevertheless, as the Capital of the Nation, and because its metropolitan area will undoubtedly exceed 1,000,000 in population in the very near future, he believes its financial importance is assured.

Discussing the question of extension of branch banking to embrace rural communities under a plan based upon trade areas of the large cities, the speaker admitted criticism that the resulting growth of large metropolitan banks in the commercial centers would develop a concentration of capital which might prove inimical to the best interest of the public and might even lead to monopolistic control in banking.

Explains Regional Bank Branches.

It is his view, however, that establishment of regional branch banking in this country within trade areas would have the contrary effect as it would decentralize the banking capital in the United States and bring bank manage.nent closer to communities with which they do business. In other words, the principal banks in the land would not all be in one or two cities.

At the suggestion of Wilmer J. Waller, vice president, Federal-American National Bank, and president of the association, this body will give immediate consideration to the desirability of inviting the American Bankers Association and the Association of Reserve City Bankers to hold their national conventions in Washington in 1932, year of the George Washington ricentennial, when many important gatherings will be held in the National Capital.

President Waller recommended closer contact between association officers and its sections, suggesting that in view of the impossibility of the chief executive attending all group conferences, the two vice presidents make arrangements to be present at additional meetings of committees or sections.

Credit Manager Urged.

He also urged appointment of a permanent manager for the associations credit bureau, adoption of a bank collection code and legislation limiting liability of district banks or trust companies for nonpayment through error of checks or other instruments drawn on or payable at these institutions.

Committees appointed today were the following:

Resolutions: President John Poole, Federal American National Bank, chairman; Francis G. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Howard Moran, American Security & Trust Co.; Bynum E. Hinton, Chevy Chase Savings Bank, and E. F. Colladay, Second National Bank.

Nominations: President Victor B. Leyber, Second National Bank, chairman; Robert V. Fleming, Riggs National Bank; Joshua Evans, jr., District National Bank; J. T. Exnicios, Departmental Bank, and H. W. Offutt, Potomac Savings Bank.

Carl R. Kurtz, of Stroud, Kurtz & Co.; John Caswell, of F. B. Keech & Co.; H. W. Finney, of Y. E. Booker & Co.; T. C. Montgomery and J. F. Brawner, jr., of Waggaman & Brawner, will represent Washington on the trip.

1930 Strawberry Shipments Drop

Dry Weather in East Cuts Down Crop and Causes Prices to Advance.

Strawberry shipments from all sources are not much above 100 cars daily, the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported yesterday. The shipping season was drawing toward an early finish owing to dry weather in Eastern producing sections, and the total is more than one-third below last season's shipments to corresponding date.

The strawberry crop was short nearly everywhere and prices were much higher than last season for desirab'e fruit.

Raspberries are starting high, but at last reports were expected to be a good crop in Michigan, western New York, and the Northwest, except in droughty districts. The prospect is favorable for a heavy crop of sour cherries in New York, Wisconsin and Colorado, despite considerable frost damage in some districts.

New York and Virginia are the chief sources of the supply of Eastern apples at present. Total apple shipments for the season seem likely to fall 25,000 carloads under last season's output. Comparative shortage was notable in Oregon, New York and Virginia. Maine has shipped 60,000 carloads of potatoes and is still supplying most of the old stock moving at the rate of more than 100 cars daily. Sacked Maine potatoes were selling the first week of June well above $2 per 100 pounds in northern Maine.

Curb Review

New York, June 5 (A.P.).—Curb market stocks fluctuated erratically and closed substantially lower today as the day's trading exceeded 1,000,000 shares for the first time in a fortnight. The market opened steady, sold off sharply during the late morning, rallied just after midday, broke again during the afternoon, and rebounded somewhat in the last hour.

Weakness early in the day in Transamerica Corporation and Goldman Sachs Trading, both of which recorded new lows, was somewhat unsettling. There had been some disturbing rumors about Transamerica's dividend, but these were denied flatly by the management, after touching 37. The issue rallied to 39, and closed unchanged. Goldman Sachs sold off more than 2 points to 28¼, and closed at 29. Both of these companies have large holdings in bank stocks, and bank stocks generally were under pressure, which was also a factor in the decline.

In the utilities, Electric Bond & Share was heavily sold, recording an extreme loss of 3½ points, then rallying a point. American Gas and American & Foreign Power warrants lost more than 2 points each. Most of the oils were also under pressure, Cosden dropped 5 points, then rallied 2. Humble and Vacuum lost about 2 each, and Cities Service again sagged a fraction in heavy trading.

In the industrials, Deere declined more than 4 points, but rallied to close off only 1¾. Bigelow Hartford Carpet, an infrequently traded issue, dropped 10 points to a new low for the year at 60. Technicolor was also under pressure, losing 2 points. Maples Consolidated again reached new high ground with a moderate gain, however, and in the aviation issues New York, Rio & Buenos Aires rallied a point, while Ex Cello sagged a point to a new 1930 low.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

VIRGINIA BUS FARES NOT TO BE RAISED

R. L. May Tells Alexandria of Withdrawing Appeal to State Commission.

CITY COUNCIL VOTES TAX

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The application made to the State Corporation Commission for increased rates of fare between points within the State of Virginia, made by Robert L. May, owner of trolley and bus lines operating between here and Washington, has been withdrawn, according to an announcement made yesterday. This does not affect the increase between Alexandria and Washington, effective June 1.

The Virginia rates were to have become effective June 1, but strenuous objection was made by the Alexandria Commuters Association and the City of Alexandria, through its city attorney, and the day before the first of June the corporation commission announced that the effective date would be extended to June 10. The franchise originally granted to the trolley line by Alexandria provided that the rate charged within the city limits should remain at 5 cents. Mr. May first proposed to apply for an increase to 10 cents between all points south of the Highway bridge, but later changed this to 8 cents, with four tokens for 25 cents.

The letter to the State Corporation Commission withdrawing the application in so far as the intrastate rates are concerned, sets forth that since the Interstate Commerce Commission has granted the application for an increase in the Alexandria-Washington rate to 15 cents one way, with eight tokens for a dollar, the management of the trolley and bus lines has decided to give the intrastate rates heretofore existing a further trial, hoping that the operation may be continued without the necessity for any increase. Mr. May stated yesterday that the withdrawal of the application was entirely voluntary on his part, and that he has the right to apply for an increase at any time he may see fit.

Diplomas were conferred yesterday upon a graduating class of eighteen at the Episcopal Theological Seminary of Virginia, the exercises being held in the chapel of the institution and presided over by the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, Bishop of Virginia. The address to the graduates was delivered by the Right Rev. Kirkman G. Finlay, D. D., of South Carolina. Many high dignitaries of the Episcopal Church from various parts of the countiry attended.

The graduates were Maurice D. Ashbury, Portsmouth, Va.; Frank C. Bancroft, Cincinnati, Ohio; William G. Baxter, Lexington, Va.; Dudley A. Boogher, Fredericksburg, Va.; John A. Bryant, Atlantic City, N. J.; Robert L. Bull, jr., Belair, Md.; Charles H. Cadigan, Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Clifford Chadwick, Rumford, R. I.; Skardon D'Aubert, New Orleans, La.; Frederick J. Eastman, Akron, Ohio; George P. Gunn, Lynchburg, Va.; Charles G. Leavell, Louisville, Ky.; Dewey C. Loving, Ivy Depot, Va.; Frederick M. Morris, Rochester, N. Y.; Samuel U. J. Peard, Williamsport, Pa.; E. Eruest Taylor, Mohawk, N. Y.; Marshall E. Travers, Alexandria, Va., and Thomas H. Wright, Wilmington, N. C. The D. B. degree was conferred on all the foregoing with the exception of two, and certificates for having completed the regular two-year course were awarded to Claudius P. Shelton, Norfolk, Va., and Person Hill Sloan, of Savannah, Ga.

Ordination services will be held in the chapel of the seminary at 11 o'clock this morning, which will bring the exercises to a close. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. David W. Howard, D. D., rector of St. Luke's Church, Norfolk.

The city council yesterday handled a number of matters pertaining to the improvement of the city streets and sidewalks, the most important being the introduction of an ordinance appropriating $10,000 for the construction of sidewalks, which will mean an expenditure of $30,000, two-thirds of this amount to be paid by the property owners. The owners may pay one-third of this amount when the work is completed, another third in six months, and the balance in twelve months. According to the figures submitted, a 50-foot front lot will cost the owner only $35 for sidewalks, payable in three equal instalments, the work being done by the city.

Another ordinance introduced and held over under the rules would appropriate $4,800 for the resurfacing of existing macadam streets.

An appropriation of $5,000 for the installation of new fire hydrants and the adjustment of existing hydrants to conform to standard requirements, all in the newly annexed territory, was adopted.

Another ordinance was introduced and held over, appropriating $4,500 for the improvement of Peyton street, from King street to Duke street.

It was decided to take up with the property owners in the newly annexed territory the matter of oiling the dusty streets in that territory, two-thirds of the cost to be borne by the property owners and the remaining third by the city.

The annual fireworks ordinance was passed, with the understanding that next year an ordinance will be passed prohibiting explosives within the city limits. The ordinance for this year provides no explosives may be used on King or Washington streets.

Council appropriated $250 for the Alexandria United Charities; $500 for advertising purposes for the city; a petition from the Aero Auto Co. for permission to use a lot in the 1300 block King street for the sale of used cars caused general discussion, the fear being expressed that it would mean an "automobile graveyard" on King street, the main thoroughfare, but the request was finally granted, the lot to be used by this company under the supervision of the city manager.

An ordinance was passed requiring property owners to clear lots of unsightly and unhealthy weeds, the city authorities to notify the property owners to do this work, and in cases where they do not comply, the city to have the work done and assess the owner the cost.

Building permits were granted for 226 North Payne street and 1107 Queen street, also an application for gas pump at Mount Vernon Avenue garage was given favorable consideration.

An ordinance was presented and held over under the rules, permitting filling stations on private property, when kept 10 feet from the building line, except on Washington street, where no more will be allowed; also no more curb pumps will be permitted.

The city school board has elected eight new teachers for the next school term, seven for the grade schools and one for high school. They are Miss Elizabeth King, Miss Ruth King, Miss Linnine Sipe, Miss Evelyn Timberlake, Miss Mildred Allport, Miss Suella Reynolds, Miss Nancy Sublett, Miss Ernestine Lambert and Mrs. Mary Woodward, for the grade schools, and Miss Henrietta Dreifus for high school work.

Summer school for residents of the old city limits will begin June 16, for a period of eight weeks, and the date for the opening of summer school for George Mason High School will be announced later. Teachers are Miss Kroes Ficklin, Miss Margaret Helm, Mrs. Mary Moncure, Henry T. Moncure and Charles Wise.

George Mason High School will close on June 25.

Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, will hold a meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in Gadsby's Tavern, with Commander Howard L. Arnold presiding, and a program under the direction of H. B. Lemon.

FAIRFAX TO CLOSE SEVERAL SCHOOLS

Report on Consolidation in Lee and Mount Vernon Districts Is Given.

HORSE EXHIBITION TODAY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The Fairfax County School Board at its regular monthly meeting yesterday voted to close the schools at Legato, Popes Head, Oak Grove, Colvin Run, Navy, Springfield, Lincolnia and Idylewood. These schools are all one or two room buildings and the closing agrees with the board's plan of school consolidation.

The pupils of Legato will be transported to Centerville School, Popes Head and Oak Grove pupils transported to Fairview, the Colvin Run pupils to Forestville, the Forestville High School pupils to Herndon, Navy pupils to Floris, and the high school pupils at Floris to Herndon. The pupils at Springfield and Lincolnia will be transported to the Annandale School.

The week-day school of religious education which has been conducted during the past year in the fifth and sixth grades of several schools by the churches of the county was discussed, and the churches were given the privilege of extending this course through the next school term. The details are to be worked out by them with Wilbert T. Woodson, divisional superintendent of schools.

The board granted the request of Miss Sara E Thomas, Fairfax County home demonstration agent, for the loan of two school buses for the transportation of 4-H Club members to the summer camp next week.

Trustee John T. DeBell was authorized by the board to purchase an acre and one-half of ground adjoining the present Clifton School for $125 to be used as a playground.

The board received the report of the special committee appointed in Mount Vernon and Lee districts in regard to the proposed school consolidation and plans for financing new school buildings in these districts. In Mount Vernon district it was believed that a bond issue could be carried for school centers at Franconia, Groveton and Woodlawn. In Lee district the committee's report showed that the people were favorable for such a bond issue in the southern section of the district while the northern district opposed such a program.

Mason Hirst, of Annandale, presented a petition to the board signed by 151 taxpayers of Falls Church district. This petition approved the consolidation of high schools in the county, but asked that when a high school was built for Falls Church district that it be located at Annandale.

Erving Devers, of Franconia, was arrested by Traffic Policeman Lewis L. Finks at the Franconia dance hall for the violation of the State prohibition law. It is said that when he was arrested he had in his possession two pints of alleged liquor. He was taken before Justice of Peace Thomas P. Chapman at Fairfax, where he was held for the action of the grand jury.

The seventeenth annual Fairfax County horse show, which is the largest social as well as sporting event in Fairfax County, will open this morning at 11 o'clock at the Fairfax County Fair Grounds. Estler M. Palmer, president and manager of the show, stated last night that this show is an experiment by the board of directors of the County Horse Show Association and that so far it has promised to be a greater success than was at first figured on and that he believes that it will be an annual event hereafter.

Previous to this year this event was held in conjunction with the annual county fair that is held in September. But because the cattle and stock exhibitors at the fair complained of lack of stall space for their exhibits, it was decided to hold these events at separate times, as an experiment this year. President Palmer also stated last night that sixteen additional stalls have been added. He believes that they will not have sufficient stall space to accommodate the entries, which now exceed 400. It is believed that the post entries will make the total more than 500. Over $2,000 in cash prizes, cups and trophies will be given to the winners in the show.

Among the box holders this year are Carl Corby, Leon Arnold and E. J. Roth, of Washington; Representative R. Walton Moore, Thomas R. Keith, John Rust, Robert T. Graham, Fred D. Richardson and Wilson Farr, of Fairfax; A. Smith Bowman, of Sunset Hills, and Mrs. Harley P. Wilson, of Hollin Hill Farms, Fairfax County.

USE OF BOND MONEY OUTLINED BY BOARD

Proposed School Expansion in Arlington Outlined in Statement.

NEEDS ARE EXPLAINED

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With a glaring need for additional school facilities in Arlington County to meet the ever increasing school enrollment, the county school board last night issued the following statement on their plans for handling the $640,000 school bond issue if the people of the county vote favorably on Monday next. The statement follows:

"At present Washington-Lee High School has an enrollment of 1,275 pupils, with 25 classrooms, making approximately 51 pupils to a classroom. In the proposed bond issue, there is an allotment of $255,000 for 42 additional classrooms, of which 22 will be erected immediately following the approval of the bond issue. Only that portion of the bonds needed for this purpose will be sold, and the remaining portion will be withheld for future building. The 32 additional classrooms will be ample to meet the needs of the school for several years, and will reduce the room enrollment to normal classes.

"The present enrollment of the James Monroe School is 225 pupils, with four classrooms, approximately 56 pupils to a classroom. The proposed addition is for four extra classrooms at a cost of $25,000, which addition will reduce the classes to normal and be adequate for future increases.

"Henry Clay School, with two classrooms, has an enrollment of 174 pupils. The addition proposed is for four classrooms at a cost of $22,500.

"Stonewall Jackson School at present has two classrooms, with an enrollment of 199 pupils. The addition proposed is for four classrooms, at a cost of $22,500.

"Woodmont School at present has two classrooms, with an enrollment of 50 pupils. The proposed addition is for two added classrooms, at a cost of $12,000.

"Nellie Custis School at present has four classrooms with an enrollment of 186 pupils. The proposed addition is for four classrooms, at a cost of $22,500.

"Patrick Henry School, at present an eight-room building, has an enrollment of 340 pupils. The proposed addition is for four rooms, at a cost of $20,000.

"Jefferson Colored School, at present with four classrooms, has an enrollment of 208 pupils. The proposed addition is for four classrooms, at a cost of $20,000.

"Furniture and other equipment for the additional 68 classrooms in the various schools carries an allotment in the bond issue of $15,500, making a total of $415,000 for construction and equipment.

"The remaining $225,000 is for the purpose of refunding all short-term loans. Five years ago the total amount of short-term loans approximated $450,000, and during the last five years $225,000 of the principal, plus the interest, has been paid off out of the current levy of 90 cents on the $100 assessed valuation, thus taking 30 cents of the levy of 90 cents for the curtailment of debts and interest. Under the plan of the proposed bond issue 15 cents of the 30 cents formerly used for the interest and sinking fund to retire the $640,000 of bonds at the expiration of 30 years. The other 15 cents will provide for the additional teachers and cost of operation of the additional classrooms. Therefore, when the proposed bond issue is approved by the people it will provide for 68 additional classrooms and teachers at the same rate of 90 cents as is now levied for schools.

"Plans and specifications for all buildings will be prepared by the State architest, Raymond V. Long, and all construction will be under his direct supervision."

In conclusion, Thomas J. DeLashmutt, chairman of the school board, says that if the bond issue for schools is approved by the people on Monday all additions to the various schools will be let by competitive bids as required by law, and further that the school board is thoroughly in accord with the policy of using labor and material; that they would most earnestly request and urge the successful bidders to follow this policy as far as it is practical."

Commonwealth's Attorney and Commissioner of Revenue Harry K. Green leave for Richmond, where they will confer with the State Corporation Commission relative to assessing the public utilities of Arlington County.

The report for May as given out yesterday covering activities of the county clerk's office, shows a total of 325 deeds recorded; State tax, $1,147.24; wills and administrations, 4; State tax, $6.10; chancery suits, 27; tax collected, $40.50; actions at law, 12; State tax, $21. Fines collected in prohibition cases totaled $190 with costs amounting to $440.50. Fines in cases other than prohibition were $281.25 with costs of $466. Delinquent land taxes collected going to the State amounted to $91.41. Amount of delinquent land taxes collected during the month going to the county treasurer was $744.31.

Meeting yesterday in the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse, the Arlington County Monarch Club completed its plans for its annual ladies' night to be held tonight at the clubhouse.

The program includes a banquet to start at 7:30 o'clock to be followed by a musical program.

Walter U. Varney is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

The Arlington Volunteer Fire Department holds its monthly meeting tonight at 8 o'clock in its new fire house.

The Arlington Rotary Club met yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The Rev. Isaac Stevenson, pastor of the Clarendon Presbyterian Church, addressed the club on "The Relation of Church to the Community."

The zoning appeal board of the county, meeting at the courthouse last night, reserved its decision on the appeal of citizens from Barcroft on the granting the permit to the Virginia Ice & Fuel Corporation to construct a coal yard on Columbia Pike at Barcroft.

Chairman of the board, J. Hammond Brewer, jr., with the other members, took the view that the property in question should again be visited that they may be better informed as to the location and its effect on that community, this being their first meeting. The board agreed to visit the proposed site today.

H. G. Freiwald, a nearby resident, appeared and opposed the project on the grounds that it would prevent the future development of that section for commercial business purposes and the proposed parkway for that section.

N. B. Walters, whose property is close to the proposed project, declared it would reduce the value of adjoining property.

Col. H. G. Pepper declared he represented no interests but that he always has been unalterably opposed to the zoning of Arlington County in such a way as to keep business out which goes a long way in assisting in the paying of taxes.

Attorneys Charles T. Jesse and Thomas W. Phillips, for the corporation, stated that it proposed to expend $12,000 on the small site and that it hardly seemed fair to tell a man he can not use his property for this development in view of the fact that it adjoins their present ice plant which has been in operation for more than a year.

Robert H. Forman, administrative officer to the board of supervisors, stated he opposed the granting of the permit on the grounds that the present zoning ordinance does not provide for a coal yard to be located in the section despite the fact that it is zoned for light business.

WAR UPON DISTRICT TRUCKERS DECLARED

Officials of Maryland and Virginia Say Vans Must Carry State Tags.

GLOTH PROTESTS ORDER

Maryland and Virginia have declared war on Distirct shippers who operate trucks in these nearby States with District of Columbia license plates. The motor vehicle commissioners of these neighboring States declare that the use of District tags by shippers operating in their territory is an unfair trade advantage.

The war in Maryland does not include occasional shippers, but merely those trucks which operate on regular schedules in Maryland. In Virginia the situation is much worse for the truckers. In the Old Dominion it appears to be a crime to load up in Virginia if the truck carries District tags. The situation has become so bad in Arlington County that Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth today plans to go to Richmond to complain to Gov. John Garland Pollard about the manner in which the office of the motor vehicle commissioner is enforcing the law.

Mr. Gloth declared yesterday that the situation is "outrageous" and that he proposes asking the governor to put an immediate end to the enforcement of the ruling from the office of Motor Vehicle Commissioner T. McCall Frazier. "Let this continue and it will destroy the pleasant relationship now existing between the officials of the District of Columbia and Virginia," he said.

Mr. Gloth declared that business relations between Arlington County and the Capital will be seriously hampered if the ruling is permitted to remain in effect. He cited the case of a Virginian who worked for his brother in Washington and on trip home one night took his brother's truck along, returning with a load of wood the next day. He was arrested and ordered to appear in court.

The Commonwealth's attorney declared that truck and pleasure tags in Virginia are extremely high and that Washington merchants, rather than pay the prices of tags in Virginia, will refuse to make deliveries in that State.

In Virginia tags for trucks are $15 a ton until the four-ton class is reached when the rates are higher per ton, a five-ton truck being $200. Washington tags cost $1. Mr. Gloth has asked that all such cases be continued until after his conference with the governor.

Maryland Orders Tags Bought.

In Maryland several large trucking companies which operate from Washington have been ordered to purchase Maryland tags by the motor vehicle commissioner of Maryland, Col. Austin Baughman. The trucks operated by these companies operate on regular schedules to Baltimore, Annapolis, Frederick and other Maryland towns. This does not include those trucks which do not operate on regular schedules.

Arthur Keefer, counsel for the Tristate Trucking Co., has notified the motor vehicle commissioner that his company contends that all trucks operating in Maryland must have tags if the regular route trucks are made to buy them.

The motor vehicle commissioner's office declares that Maryland truckers have complained that they are being discriminated against when they are forced to pay $75 for truck tags and then have to compete with District trucks that pay but $1 license fee. Investigation of these complaints led to the present move.
